Preliminary Information

Important Note to Users

Training Packages are not static documents; they are amended periodically to reflect the latest industry practices and are version controlled. It is essential that the latest version is always used.

Check the version number before commencing training or assessment

This Training Package is Version 3 - check whether this is the latest version by going to the National Training Information Service (www.ntis.gov.au) and locating information about the Training Package. Alternatively, contact Innovation and Business Industry Skills Council at <http://www.ibsa.org.au> to confirm the latest version number.

Explanation of version number conventions

The primary release Training Package is Version 1. When changes are made to a Training Package, sometimes the version number is changed and sometimes it is not, depending on the extent of the change. When a Training Package is reviewed it is considered to be a new Training Package for the purposes of version control, and is Version 1. Do not confuse the version number with the Training Packages national code (which remains the same during its period of endorsement).

1	24 November 2010	First release of the FNS10 Financial Services Training Package

History

Version 3 of the Training Package introduces new units of competence in the Life Insurance sector, more accurately reflecting the specific work outcomes in this sector as distinct from the more general insurance sector. In addition, 3 units have been edited and a further two specific units developed to provide a Tax Practitioners Skill Set reflecting the published requirements of the Tax Practitioners Board for registration as a tax practitioner.

Version 2 of the Training Package reflects changes identified as being required during the endorsement and implementation of the new Training Package. This has seen the removal of one qualification FNS30710 Certificate III in Life Insurance with the inclusion of requisite units in the Certificate III in Financial Services, reflecting a more appropriate qualification for entry level candidates. A number of additional specialist units have been migrated from the FNS04 Training Package, two new units have been developed reflecting contemporary work practices in life insurance and a number of qualifications have seen changes in structure to reflect more accurately the needs of industry. Two generic qualifications in financial services (Certificate IV and Diploma) have been reinstated in response to strong industry representation.

The FNS10 Financial Services Training Package was developed after a full review of the FNS04 Financial Services Training Package which had its primary release as Version 1 in 22 November 2004 after a full review of the previous Training Package FNB99 Financial Services Training Package. The FNS04 Training Package has 32 qualifications, 2 Skill Sets and 371 unique units of competency.

The FNS10 Financial Services Training Package rationalises the units of competency and includes more imported units to reduce duplication. FNS10 qualifications increase to 52 to cover new industry specialisations and better reflect career and learning pathways. The previous qualification FNS51304 Diploma in Financial Services (Consumer Education) has been deleted and the outcomes covered in a new Skill Set. The two superannuation Skill Sets in FNS04 have been removed on industry advice.

All version codes have been revised as follows:

All FNS10 units are formatted in the latest NTIS template and have had content updates content to previous FNS04 units such as enhanced Required Skills and Knowledge and Evidence Guide components. Where this is the extent of the updating and the unit outcomes (not content) are deemed the same as in FNS04 units in the mapping table as described as equivalent to related FNS04 units.

All units have a change to the unit code (stream/sector coding and/or sequence number in a unit group) or a revised title so even if the unit outcomes are deemed equivalent to related FNS04 units the version control identifier is now 'A'.

For units with content changes such that they are no longer equivalent to related FNS04 units and for new FNS10 units the version control identifier is also 'A'.

Overview

What is a Training Package?

A Training Package is an integrated set of nationally endorsed competency standards, assessment guidelines and Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) qualifications for a specific industry, industry sector or enterprise.

Each Training Package:

- provides a consistent and reliable set of components for training, recognising and assessing peoples skills, and may also have optional support materials
- enables nationally recognised qualifications to be awarded through direct assessment of workplace competencies
- encourages the development and delivery of flexible training which suits individual and industry requirements
- encourages learning and assessment in a work-related environment which leads to verifiable workplace outcomes.

How do Training Packages fit within the National Skills Framework?

The National Skills Framework applies nationally, is endorsed by the Ministerial Council for Vocational and Technical Education, and comprises the Australian Quality Training Framework 2007 (AQTF 2007), and Training Packages endorsed by the National Quality Council (NQC).

How are Training Packages developed?

Training Packages are developed by Industry Skills Councils or enterprises to meet the identified training needs of specific industries or industry sectors. To gain national endorsement of Training Packages, developers must provide evidence of extensive research, consultation and support within the industry area or enterprise.

How do Training Packages encourage flexibility?

Training Packages describe the skills and knowledge needed to perform effectively in the workplace without prescribing how people should be trained.

Training Packages acknowledge that people can achieve vocational competency in many ways by emphasising what the learner can do, not how or where they learned to do it. For example, some experienced workers might be able to demonstrate competency against the units of competency, and even gain a qualification, without completing a formal training program.

With Training Packages, assessment and training may be conducted at the workplace, off-the-job, at a training organisation, during regular work, or through work experience, work placement, work simulation or any combination of these.

Who can deliver and assess using Training Packages?

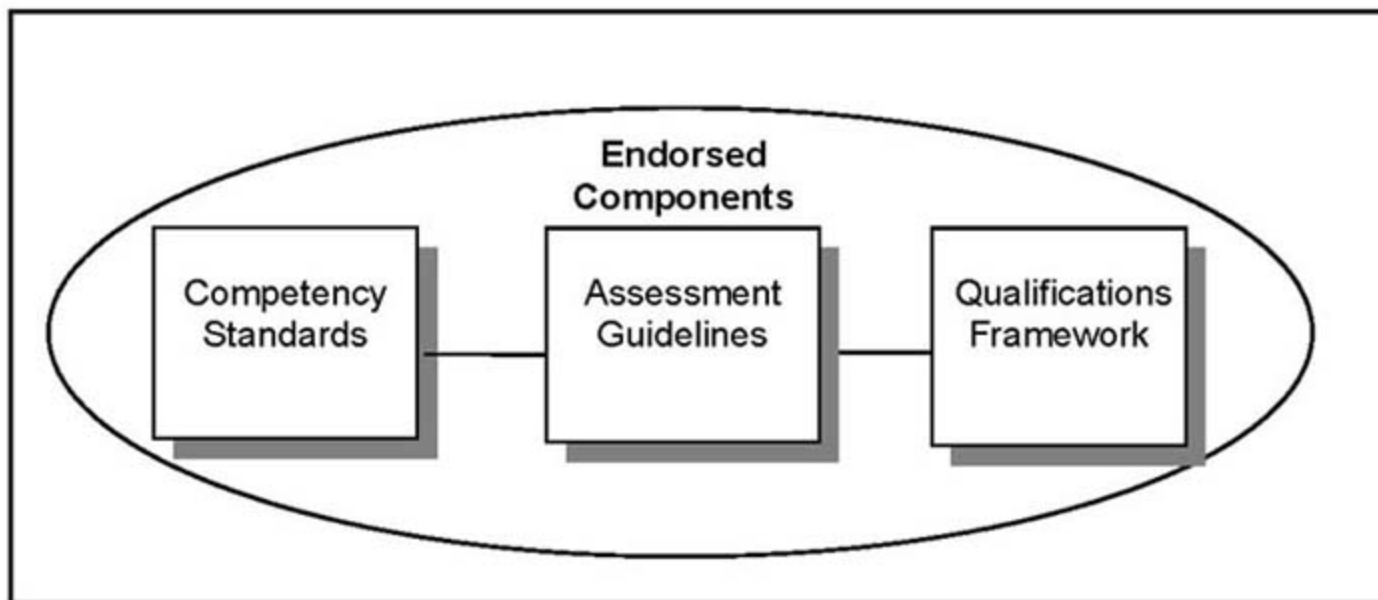

Training and assessment using Training Packages must be conducted by a Registered Training Organisation (RTO) that has the qualifications or specific units of competency on its scope of registration, or that works in partnership with another RTO, as specified in the AQTF 2007.

Training Package Components

Training Packages are made up of mandatory components endorsed by the NQC, and optional support materials.

Training Package Endorsed Components

The nationally endorsed components include the Competency Standards, Assessment Guidelines and Qualifications Framework. These form the basis of training and assessment in the Training Package and, as such, they must be used.

Competency Standards

Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes the knowledge and skills that underpin competency as well as language, literacy and numeracy; and occupational health and safety requirements. The units of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Assessment Guidelines

The Assessment Guidelines provide an industry framework to ensure all assessments meet industry needs and nationally agreed standards as expressed in the Training Package and the AQTF 2007. The Assessment Guidelines must be followed to ensure the integrity of assessment leading to nationally recognised qualifications.

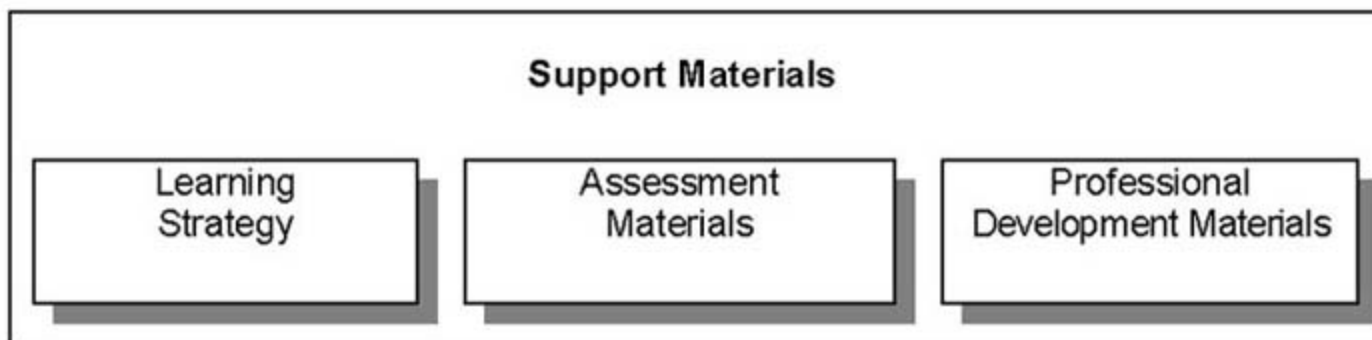

Qualifications Framework

Each Training Package provides details of those units of competency that must be achieved to award AQF qualifications. The rules around which units of competency can be combined to make up a valid AQF qualification in the Training Package are referred to as the "packaging rules". The packaging rules must be followed to ensure the integrity of nationally recognised qualifications issued.

Training Package Support Materials

The endorsed components of Training Packages are complemented and supported by optional support materials that provide for choice in the design of training and assessment to meet the needs of industry and learners.

Training Package support materials can relate to single or multiple units of competency, an industry sector, a qualification or the whole Training Package. They tend to fall into one or more of the categories illustrated below.

Training Package support materials are produced by a range of stakeholders such as RTOs, individual trainers and assessors, private and commercial developers and Government agencies.

Where such materials have been quality assured through a process of "noting" by the NQC, they display the following official logo. Noted support materials are listed on the National Training Information Service (NTIS), together with a detailed description and information on the type of product and its availability < www.ntis.gov.au >

It is not compulsory to submit support materials for noting; any resources that meet the requirements of the Training Package can be used.

Training Package, Qualification and Unit of Competency Codes

There are agreed conventions for the national codes used for Training Packages and their components. Always use the correct codes, exactly as they appear in the Training Package, and with the code always before the title.

Training Package Codes

Each Training Package has a unique five-character national code assigned when the Training Package is endorsed, for example FNS10. The first three characters are letters identifying the Training Package industry coverage and the last two characters are numbers identifying the year of endorsement.

Qualification Codes

Within each Training Package, each qualification has a unique eight-character code, for example FNS10110. Qualification codes are developed as follows:

- the first three letters identify the Training Package;
- the first number identifies the qualification level (noting that, in the qualification titles themselves, arabic numbers are not used);
- the next two numbers identify the position in the sequence of the qualification at that level; and
- the last two numbers identify the year in which the qualification was endorsed. (Where qualifications are added after the initial Training Package endorsement, the last two numbers may differ from other Training Package qualifications as they identify the year in which those particular qualifications were endorsed.)

Unit of Competency Codes

Within each Training Package, each unit of competency has a unique code. Unit of competency codes are assigned when the Training Package is endorsed, or when new units of competency are added to an existing endorsed Training Package. Unit codes are developed as follows:

- a typical code is made up of 12 characters, normally a mixture of uppercase letters and numbers, as in FNSACC301A;
- the first three characters signify the Training Package - FNS10 - in the above example and up to eight characters, relating to an industry sector, function or skill area, follow;

- the last character is always a letter and identifies the unit of competency version. An "A" at the end of the code indicates that this is the original unit of competency. "B", or another incremented version identifier means that minor changes have been made. Typically this would mean that wording has changed in the range statement or evidence guide, providing clearer intent; and
- where changes are made that alter the outcome, a new code is assigned and the title is changed.

Training Package, Qualification and Unit of Competency Titles

There are agreed conventions for titling Training Packages and their components. Always use the correct titles, exactly as they appear in the Training Package, and with the code always placed before the title.

Training Package Titles

The title of each endorsed Training Package is unique and relates the Training Packages broad industry coverage.

Qualification Titles

The title of each endorsed Training Package qualification is unique. Qualification titles use the following sequence:

- first, the qualification is identified as either Certificate I, Certificate II, Certificate III, Certificate IV, Diploma, Advanced Diploma, Vocational Graduate Certificate, or Vocational Graduate Diploma;
- this is followed by the words "in" for Certificates I to IV, and "of" for Diploma, Advanced Diploma, Vocational Graduate Certificate and Vocational Graduate Diploma;
- then, the industry descriptor, for example Telecommunications; and
- then, if applicable, the occupational or functional stream in brackets, for example (Computer Systems).

For example:

- FNS10110 Certificate I in Financial Services

Unit of Competency Titles

Each unit of competency title is unique. Unit of competency titles describe the competency outcome concisely, and are written in sentence case.

For example:

- FNSACC301A Process financial transactions and extract interim reports

Historical and General Information

Version 3.0 of the Training Package has been developed primarily to allow the introduction of units suitable to meet the requirements of the Tax Practitioners Board. The Tax Practitioners Skill Set comprises 5 units, 3 existing units that have been enhanced to ensure direct relationship with the TPB requirements, and two new units developed in commercial law to be packaged at Diploma and Advanced Diploma.

New units of competence and modified qualifications structures for Life Insurance qualifications at Certificate IV and Diploma level have also been added.

This revision of the FNS10 Training Package (v2.0) reflects adjustments and amendments that emerged at endorsement and during subsequent implementation. One qualification has been removed as unnecessary, two additional qualifications have been reinstated (generic financial services Certificate IV and Diploma) and adjustments have been made to qualifications reflecting closer scrutiny of requirements. This now places the number of qualifications in the Training Package at 52, the number of unique units at 350 and imported units 140.

The FNS10 Financial Services Training Package supersedes the FNS04 Training Package which moved to version 2 in 22 October 2007.

The FNS10 Package (v1.0) included 342 unique units of competency and 133 identified imported units plus the use of units from other Training Packages and accredited courses allowed by the packaging rules. It has 51 qualifications covering all industry sectors plus a Skill Set for financial literacy education.

Fifty-one new FNS10 units were developed to cover new skill requirements, better reflect industry job roles and meet regulatory requirements. There were new units in accounting, financial markets, credit/lending, ASIC advisory, banking, financial literacy and risk management. Sustainability was embedded in all relevant qualification frameworks across the Package and relevant higher level units from the Business Services Training Package are either in elective banks or can be imported as required.

The qualifications in the FNS10 Package have undergone significant change from the previous FNS04 structure. Most notable is the 'unbundling' of the insurance industry specialisations from the previous Certificate/Diploma/Advanced Diploma Financial Services generic qualifications. The insurance stakeholders believe separate, appropriately titled qualifications will suit their needs. The previous Workers Compensation qualifications have also been extensively revised and re-titled under a Personal Injury Management nomenclature to better reflect the professional focus.

Due to meeting the industry proposals for differentiated and new qualifications the number of qualifications in the FNS10 Financial Services Training Package has increased to 51 despite rationalising and removing some of the previous FNS04 qualifications where this was indicated in the review scoping. Unique units of competency have, however, been rationalised by 8 per cent even though new units were added. This was achieved largely by replacing FNS04 cross-industry units that had been superseded by more recent and portable business services or other industry units.

Packaging of the FNS10 Financial Services Training Package qualifications were extensively revised and agreed by the EWG members to meet the new NQC flexibility rules. While there are a number of financial services qualifications subject to licensing most, but not all, still meet the one-third electives and one-sixth imported units of competency requirements. All FNS10 qualifications except those covering conveyancing allow for importation of units of competency from accredited courses. Agreement has also been reached with Swinburne University of Technology to refer to two specialist units in carbon accounting in relevant FNS10 qualifications.

Pathways into and from FNS10 qualifications were identified in each case. This largely indicates the hierarchy of learning routes for sector specialisation. However, at the higher AQF levels articulation into higher education programs is noted as a possible career pathway. This is particularly relevant in the accounting stream but some industry bodies such as CPA Australia have their own educational programs required for membership. The financial services industry traditionally takes a high proportion of new entrants who already hold higher education qualifications in various business and related disciplines so in many cases FNS10 qualifications can build specialist skills onto an existing broad business knowledge base.

Introduction to the Industry

The financial services industry has clear sectoral lines, with broad and non-descriptive industry classifications and some unique product streams, particularly in the insurance sector.

With increasing convergence and cross-selling of products across different sectors, job roles overlap to some degree and individuals can move between sectors and enterprises. Use of technology also streamlines processes industry wide and many frontline job roles are sales oriented. Building customer relationships, professionalisation and managing compliance requirements are key abilities required at higher levels.

The financial services industry is diverse and increasingly subject to regulation, from both government agencies and industry bodies. The FNS10 units of competency all refer to relevant government regulatory requirements, legislation, Australian Standards and industry and enterprise codes of practice that must be adhered to in day-to-day operations.

Job roles change constantly to reflect business demands and customer expectations. In this regard the FNS10 Financial Services Training Package shows significant inclusion of customer service and sales and marketing skills in qualifications. Front line and customer contact centre staff in the industry do not just process financial transactions but build relationships with customers and clients and actively promote products and services within the bounds of regulation. Use of information technology and a team-based environment for all aspects of work are also common themes.

While specialist industry skills are the foundation of the FNS10 Package all qualifications include occupational health and safety and sustainability skills necessary for any modern workplace and there is more commonality of units of competency across the Package and far more use of imported units, particularly from the Business Services (BSB07) Training Package to ensure flexibility and portability of skills.

The FNS10 Training Package has deliberately flexible qualifications where industry sector convergence is occurring, the most obvious being in banking where similar services and products are increasingly offered through credit unions and other deposit-taking organisations. Similarly providing financial advice is covered in various qualifications such as insurance specialisations and superannuation and not just in financial planning roles.

The majority of FNS10 qualifications have direct entry with the exception of entry requirements in the accounting stream to reflect industry and RTO views about essential underpinning skills plus some areas requiring licensing by ASIC or State and Territory authorities regulating conveyancing. There are no barriers to progression through qualifications in the Package on the basis of organisational membership or industrial matters.

Wherever possible the unit application statements indicate where the skills can be used not just in financial services occupations but in other industries to show connectivity. For example credit and lending skills involving dealing with credit applications and managing/recovering debts can be utilised in retail and many other industries.

ASIC Compliance

Organisations wishing to use the FNS10 Financial Services Training Package for ASIC compliance should ensure that the units chosen cover the knowledge and skills requirements described by ASIC for the appropriate educational level (Tier 1 or Tier 2). Two units have been developed specifically to satisfy the requirements for Tier 2 and these are available within the Training Package at both Certificate III and Certificate IV level:

- FNSASIC301C Establish client relationship and analyse needs, and
- FNSASIC302C Develop, present and negotiate client solutions

Units have been developed specifically to satisfy the requirements for Tier 1, one unit for each ASIC identified specialist knowledge area:

- Derivatives
- Financial Planning
- First Home Saver Accounts (containing an investment component)
- Foreign Exchange
- General Insurance (personal sickness and accident)
- Insurance Broking
- Life Insurance
- Managed Investments
- Margin Lending Facilities
- Securities
- Self Managed Superannuation
- Superannuation

All of these units have been written at Diploma level and represent the ASIC identified generic and specialist knowledge areas that are required to satisfy licensing obligations.

In packaging these units for qualifications it is important to note that each of the FNSASIC 503 series units can only be counted once towards the issuance of a Diploma qualification, although they may be assessed and issued as Statements of Attainment as often as is required for industry compliance and participants' need.

In practice this means that should a participant achieve accreditation for say, FNSASICT503A Provide advice in Managed Investments, any future accreditation (and Statements of Attainment) they receive for any other units in this FNSASIC 503 series cannot be counted towards a Diploma qualification.

Qualifications Framework

The Australian Qualifications Framework

What is the Australian Qualifications Framework?

A brief overview of the Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) follows. For a full explanation of the AQF, see the AQF Implementation Handbook. The 2007 version of the AQF Implementation Handbook is expected to be available on the Australian Qualifications Framework Advisory Board (AQFAB) website www.aqf.edu.au during September 2007, and in print in October 2007 (obtain the hard copy by contacting AQFAB on phone 03 9639 1606 or email at aqfab@curriculum.edu.au).

The AQF provides a comprehensive, nationally consistent framework for all qualifications in post-compulsory education and training in Australia. In the vocational education and training (VET) sector it assists national consistency for all trainees, learners, employers and providers by enabling national recognition of qualifications and Statements of Attainment.

Training Package qualifications in the VET sector must comply with the titles and guidelines of the AQF. Endorsed Training Packages provide a unique title for each AQF qualification which must always be reproduced accurately.

Qualifications

Training Packages can incorporate the following eight AQF qualifications.

- Certificate I in ...
- Certificate II in ...
- Certificate III in ...
- Certificate IV in ...
- Diploma of ...
- Advanced Diploma of ...
- Vocational Graduate Certificate of ...
- Vocational Graduate Diploma of ...

On completion of the requirements defined in the Training Package, a Registered Training Organisation (RTO) may issue a nationally recognised AQF qualification. Issuance of AQF qualifications must comply with the advice provided in the AQF Implementation Handbook and the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration. .

Statement of Attainment

A Statement of Attainment is issued by a Registered Training Organisation when an individual has completed one or more units of competency from nationally recognised qualification(s)/courses(s). Issuance of Statements of Attainment must comply with the advice provided in the current AQF Implementation Handbook and the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Under the AQTF 2010, RTOs must recognise the achievement of competencies as recorded on a qualification testamur or Statement of Attainment issued by other RTOs. Given this, recognised competencies can progressively build towards a full AQF qualification.

AQF Guidelines and Learning Outcomes

The AQF Implementation Handbook provides a comprehensive guideline for each AQF qualification. A summary of the learning outcome characteristics and their distinguishing features for each VET related AQF qualification is provided below.

Certificate I

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and skills would prepare a person to perform a defined range of activities most of which may be routine and predictable.

Applications may include a variety of employment related skills including preparatory access and participation skills, broad-based induction skills and/or specific workplace skills. They may also include participation in a team or work group.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate knowledge by recall in a narrow range of areas;
- demonstrate basic practical skills, such as the use of relevant tools;
- perform a sequence of routine tasks given clear direction
- receive and pass on messages/information.

Certificate II

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and skills would prepare a person to perform in a range of varied activities or knowledge application where there is a clearly defined range of contexts in which the choice of actions required is usually clear and there is limited complexity in the range of operations to be applied.

Performance of a prescribed range of functions involving known routines and procedures and some accountability for the quality of outcomes.

Applications may include some complex or non-routine activities involving individual responsibility or autonomy and/or collaboration with others as part of a group or team.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate basic operational knowledge in a moderate range of areas;
- apply a defined range of skills;
- apply known solutions to a limited range of predictable problems;
- perform a range of tasks where choice between a limited range of options is required;
- assess and record information from varied sources;
- take limited responsibility for own outputs in work and learning.

Certificate III

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and competencies would cover selecting, adapting and transferring skills and knowledge to new environments and providing technical advice and some leadership in resolution of specified problems. This would be applied across a range of roles in a variety of contexts with some complexity in the extent and choice of options available.

Performance of a defined range of skilled operations, usually within a range of broader related activities involving known routines, methods and procedures, where some discretion and judgement is required in the selection of equipment, services or contingency measures and within known time constraints.

Applications may involve some responsibility for others. Participation in teams including group or team co-ordination may be involved.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate some relevant theoretical knowledge
- apply a range of well-developed skills
- apply known solutions to a variety of predictable problems
- perform processes that require a range of well-developed skills where some discretion and judgement is required
- interpret available information, using discretion and judgement
- take responsibility for own outputs in work and learning
- take limited responsibility for the output of others

Certificate IV

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and competencies would cover a broad range of varied activities or application in a wider variety of contexts most of which are complex and non-routine. Leadership and guidance are involved when organising activities of self and others as well as contributing to technical solutions of a non-routine or contingency nature.

Performance of a broad range of skilled applications including the requirement to evaluate and analyse current practices, develop new criteria and procedures for performing current practices and provision of some leadership and guidance to others in the application and planning of the skills. Applications involve responsibility for, and limited organisation of, others.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate understanding of a broad knowledge base incorporating some theoretical concepts
- apply solutions to a defined range of unpredictable problems
- identify and apply skill and knowledge areas to a wide variety of contexts, with depth in some areas
- identify, analyse and evaluate information from a variety of sources
- take responsibility for own outputs in relation to specified quality standards
- take limited responsibility for the quantity and quality of the output of others.

Diploma

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity covering planning and initiation of alternative approaches to skills or knowledge applications across a broad range of technical and/or management requirements, evaluation and co-ordination.

The self directed application of knowledge and skills, with substantial depth in some areas where judgment is required in planning and selecting appropriate equipment, services and techniques for self and others.

Applications involve participation in development of strategic initiatives as well as personal responsibility and autonomy in performing complex technical operations or organising others. It may include participation in teams including teams concerned with planning and evaluation functions. Group or team co-ordination may be involved.

The degree of emphasis on breadth as against depth of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies or learning outcomes enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate understanding of a broad knowledge base incorporating theoretical concepts, with substantial depth in some areas
- analyse and plan approaches to technical problems or management requirements
- transfer and apply theoretical concepts and/or technical or creative skills to a range of situations
- evaluate information, using it to forecast for planning or research purposes
- take responsibility for own outputs in relation to broad quantity and quality parameters
- take some responsibility for the achievement of group outcomes.

Advanced Diploma

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity involving analysis, design, planning, execution and evaluation across a range of technical and/or management functions including development of new criteria or applications or knowledge or procedures.

The application of a significant range of fundamental principles and complex techniques across a wide and often unpredictable variety of contexts in relation to either varied or highly specific functions. Contribution to the development of a broad plan, budget or strategy is involved and accountability and responsibility for self and others in achieving the outcomes is involved.

Applications involve significant judgement in planning, design, technical or leadership/guidance functions related to products, services, operations or procedures.

The degree of emphasis on breadth as against depth of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies or learning outcomes enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate understanding of specialised knowledge with depth in some areas
- analyse, diagnose, design and execute judgements across a broad range of technical or management functions
- generate ideas through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level
- demonstrate a command of wide-ranging, highly specialised technical, creative or conceptual skills
- demonstrate accountability for personal outputs within broad parameters
- demonstrate accountability for personal and group outcomes within broad parameters.

Vocational Graduate Certificate

Characteristics of competencies or learning outcomes

- The self-directed development and achievement of broad and specialised areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Substantial breadth and complexity involving the initiation, analysis, design, planning, execution and evaluation of technical and management functions in highly varied and highly specialised contexts.
- Applications involve making significant, high-level, independent judgements in major broad or planning, design, operational, technical and management functions in highly varied and specialised contexts. They may include responsibility and broad-ranging accountability for the structure, management and output of the work or functions of others.
- The degree of emphasis on breadth, as opposed to depth, of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing features of learning outcomes

- Demonstrate the self-directed development and achievement of broad and specialised areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Initiate, analyse, design, plan, execute and evaluate major broad or technical and management functions in highly varied and highly specialised contexts.
- Generate and evaluate ideas through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level.
- Demonstrate a command of wide-ranging, highly specialised technical, creative or conceptual skills in complex contexts.

- Demonstrate responsibility and broad-ranging accountability for the structure, management and output of the work or functions of others.

Vocational Graduate Diploma

Characteristics of competencies or learning outcomes

- The self-directed development and achievement of broad and specialised areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Substantial breadth, depth and complexity involving the initiation, analysis, design, planning, execution and evaluation of major functions, both broad and highly specialised, in highly varied and highly specialised contexts.
- Further specialisation within a systematic and coherent body of knowledge.
- Applications involve making high-level, fully independent, complex judgements in broad planning, design, operational, technical and management functions in highly varied and highly specialised contexts. They may include full responsibility and accountability for all aspects of work and functions of others, including planning, budgeting and strategy development.
- The degree of emphasis on breadth, as opposed to depth, of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing features of learning outcomes

- Demonstrate the self-directed development and achievement of broad and highly specialised areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Initiate, analyse, design, plan, execute and evaluate major functions, both broad and within highly varied and highly specialised contexts.
- Generate and evaluate complex ideas through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level.
- Demonstrate an expert command of wide-ranging, highly specialised, technical, creative or conceptual skills in complex and highly specialised or varied contexts.
- Demonstrate full responsibility and accountability for personal outputs.
- Demonstrate full responsibility and accountability for all aspects of the work or functions of others, including planning, budgeting and strategy.

Skill Sets

Definition

Skill sets are defined as single units of competency, or combinations of units of competency from an endorsed Training Package, which link to a licence or regulatory requirement, or defined industry need.

Wording on Statements of Attainment

Skill sets are a way of publicly identifying logical groupings of units of competency which meet an identified need or industry outcome. Skill sets are not qualifications.

Where skill sets are identified in a Training Package, the Statement of Attainment can set out the competencies a person has achieved in a way that is consistent and clear for employers and others. This is done by including the wording ‘these competencies meet [insert skill set title or identified industry area] need’ on the Statement of Attainment. This wording applies only to skill sets that are formally identified as such in the endorsed Training Package. See the 2010 edition of the AQF Implementation Handbook for advice on wording on Statements of Attainment. http://www.aqf.edu.au/Portals/0/Documents/Handbook/AQF_Handbook_07.pdf

Qualification Pathways

The FNS10 Financial Services Training Package has improved employment and learning pathways for the financial services industry sectors. This has been achieved by disaggregating insurance industry specialisations such as broking, life, general and loss adjusting into new discrete qualifications that have recognisable titles and job roles. In addition the Package has new qualifications at Certificate IV and Diploma that articulate career paths in financial markets, credit management and banking services. New higher level qualifications in areas such as risk management, securitisation and anti-money laundering and counter terrorism financing management also indicate how the Package has been enhanced to meet higher regulatory requirements on the industry.

VET in Schools

The Certificate II in Financial Services has been enhanced so it provides a suitable VET in Schools program for introducing learners to the industry plus achieving recognised entry-level skills.

Australian Apprenticeships Pathways

Qualifications included in the FNS10 Financial Services Training Package can be achieved by a variety of pathways and delivery methods including in institutional setting, on-the-job or through a combination of on- and off-the-job training and recognition processes.

With the exception of Certificate I (the main objective of which is to facilitate community-based financial literacy programs) and Certificate II (which is designed to facilitate VET in Schools programs and a basic set of industry skills) all other qualifications can be achieved through contracted training including Australian Apprenticeships.

Qualifications at Certificate III and IV particularly facilitate Australian Apprenticeship pathways. They provide multiple entry and exit points and promote efficient use of learning strategies and articulation arrangements.

The Diploma and Advanced Diploma qualifications may not be appropriate for an Australian Apprenticeship pathway in a majority of workplaces because of the specialist nature of the skills included and the unusual level of accountability in the usual job role. They tend to build upon existing skills gained at Certificate III and IV.

Articulation

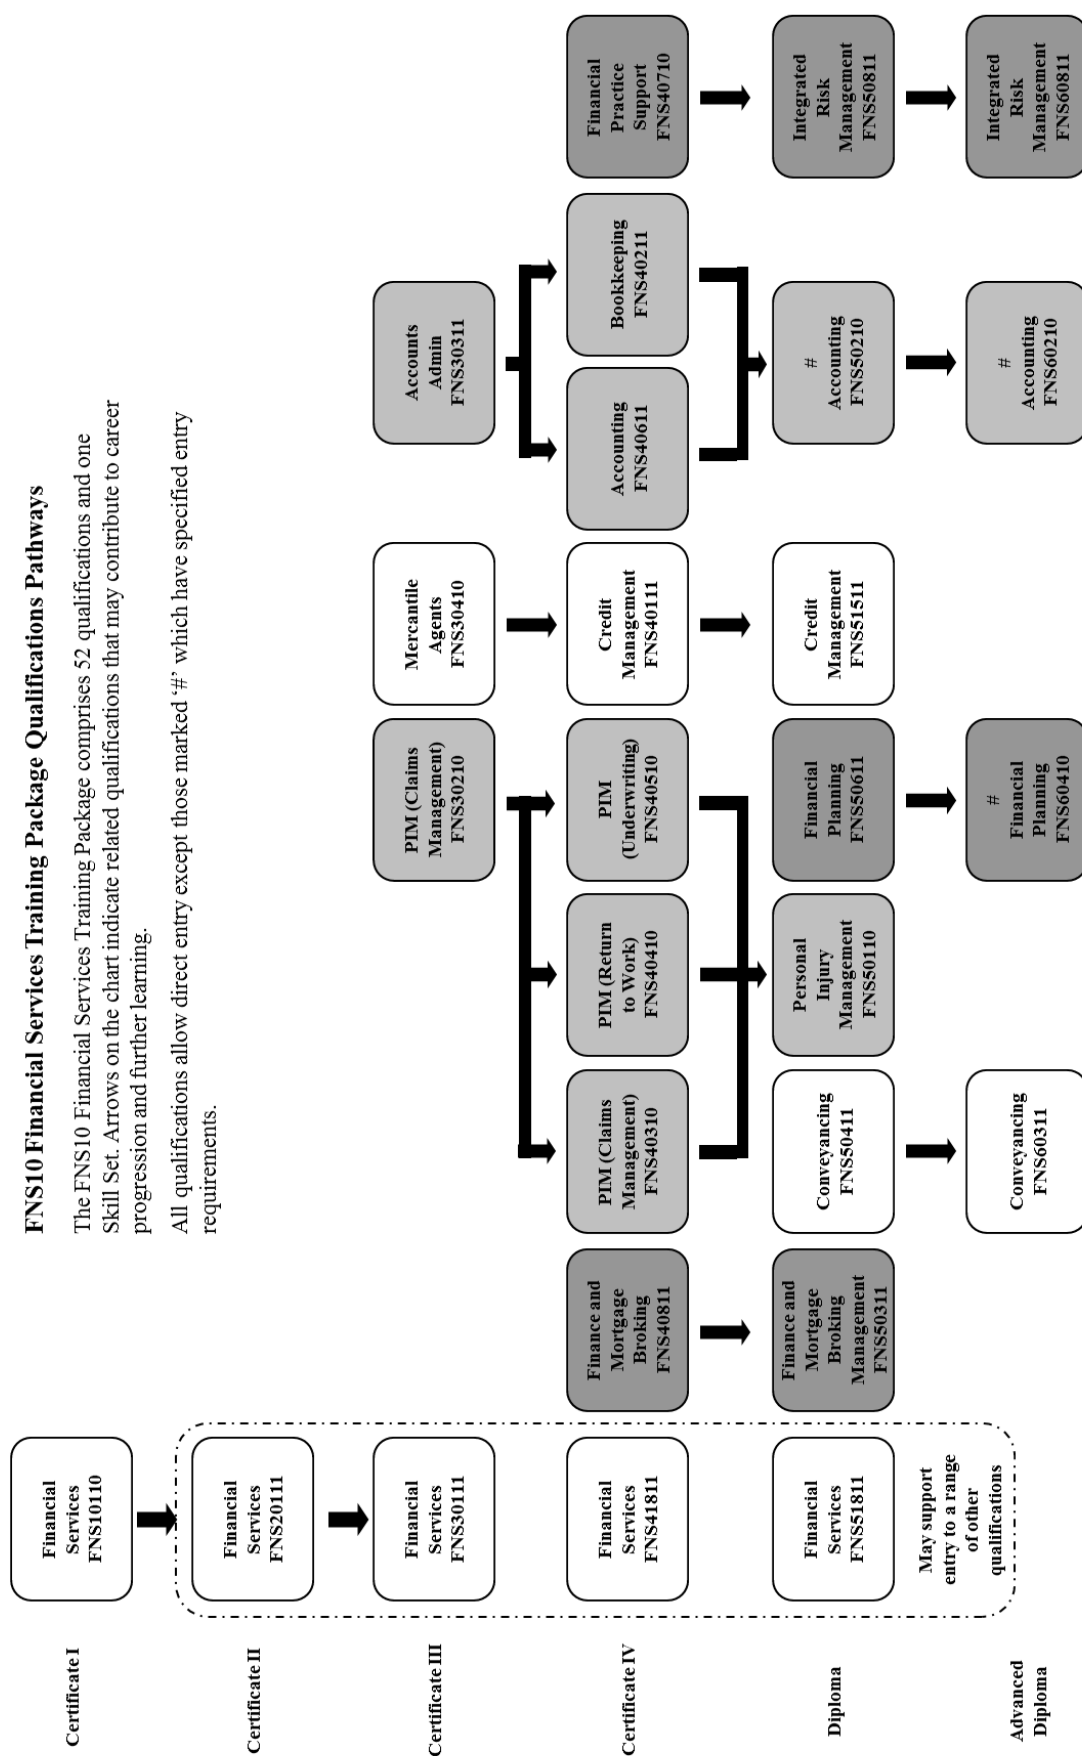

The use of Business Services (BSB07) units in every qualification also provides credit transfer opportunities for individuals who have completed or partly completed general business qualifications and wish to move into financial service careers.

Most of the FNS10 Diploma and Advanced Diploma qualifications cover underpinning competencies suited to a range of higher education programs in accounting, business and commerce. There are no universal articulation or credit arrangements with degree programs due to the considerable diversity of business/commerce higher education programs and the differences between accounting curriculum across university faculties. However, the FNS10 accounting stream qualifications should be recognised in all instances.

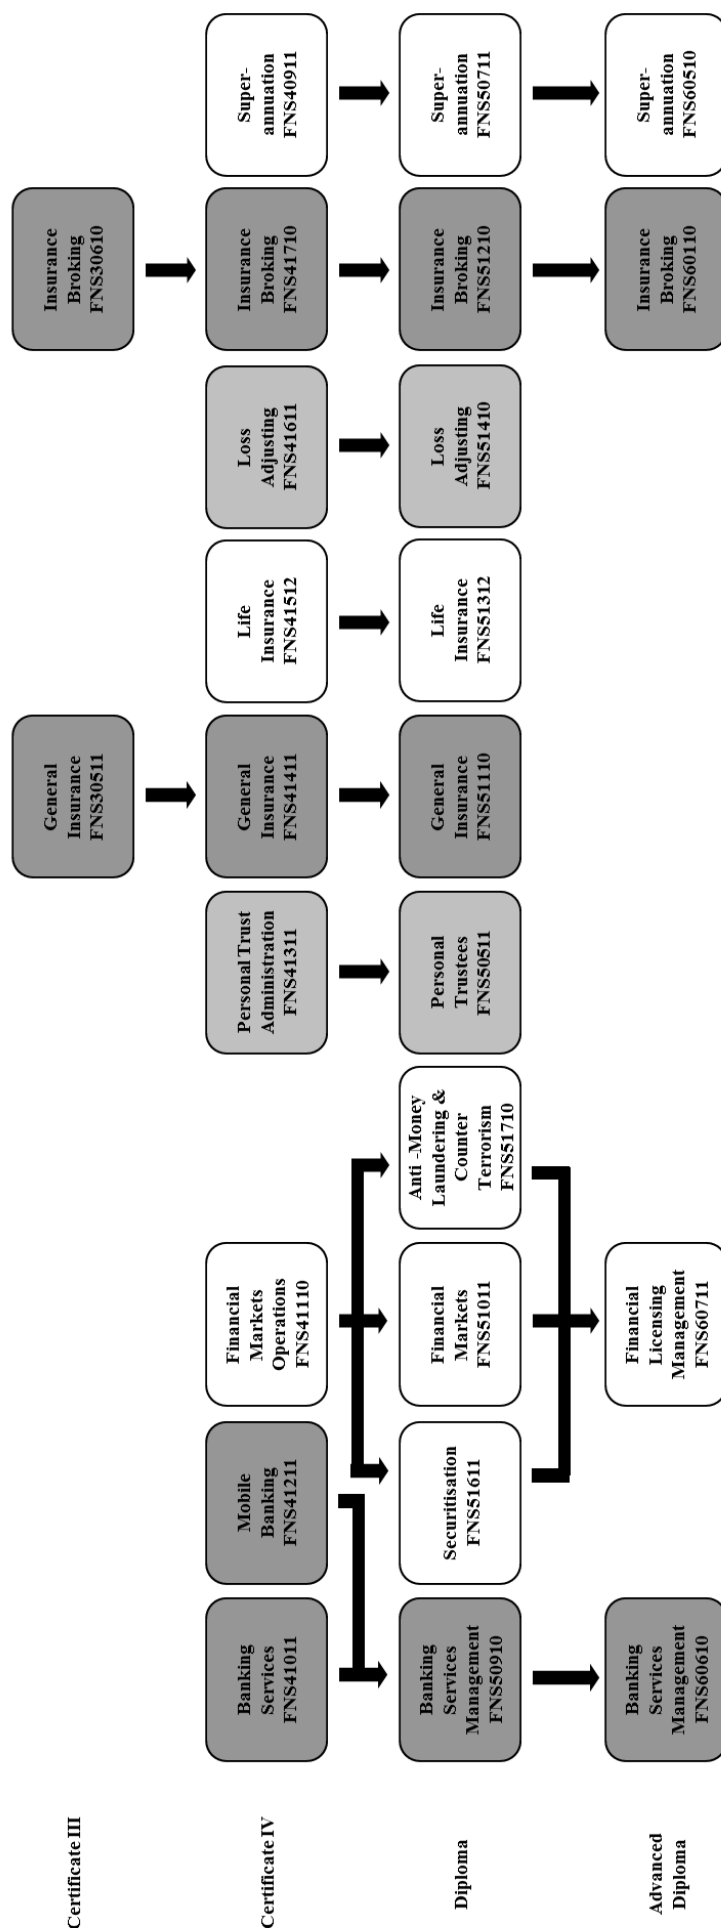

FNS10 Financial Services Training Package Qualifications Pathways

The FNS10 Financial Services Training Package comprises 52 qualifications and one Skill Set. Arrows on the chart indicate related qualifications that may contribute to career progression and further learning.

All qualifications allow direct entry except those marked '#' which have specified entry requirements.

Employability Skills

Background to Employability Skills

Employability Skills can sometimes be referred to as generic skills, capabilities or Key Competencies.

Employability Skills are described for particular occupational and industry contexts under the following broad headings:

- communication
- teamwork
- problem solving
- initiative and enterprise
- planning and organising
- self-management
- learning
- technology.

Under each heading are facets that employers have identified as being important work skills. These facets are dependent both in their nature and priority on an enterprise's business activity. Personal attributes that may also contribute to employability are not part of the Employability Skills Framework.

Employability Skills Framework

The following table contains the Employability Skills facets:

Skill	Facets
	Aspects of the skill that employers identify as important. The nature and application of these facets will vary depending on industry and job type.

Communication that contributes to productive and harmonious relations across employees and customers	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • listening and understanding • speaking clearly and directly • writing to the needs of the audience • negotiating responsively • reading independently • empathising • using numeracy effectively • understanding the needs of internal and external customers • persuading effectively • establishing and using networks • being assertive • sharing information • speaking and writing in languages other than English
Teamwork that contributes to productive working relationships and outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • working across different ages irrespective of gender, race, religion or political persuasion • working as an individual and as a member of a team • knowing how to define a role as part of the team • applying teamwork to a range of situations e.g. futures planning and crisis problem solving • identifying the strengths of team members • coaching and mentoring skills, including giving feedback
Problem solving that contributes to productive outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • developing creative, innovative and practical solutions • showing independence and initiative in identifying and solving problems • solving problems in teams • applying a range of strategies to problem solving • using mathematics, including budgeting and financial management to solve problems • applying problem-solving strategies across a range of areas • testing assumptions, taking into account the context of data and circumstances • resolving customer concerns in relation to complex project issues
Initiative and enterprise that contribute	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • adapting to new situations

to innovative outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • developing a strategic, creative and long-term vision • being creative • identifying opportunities not obvious to others • translating ideas into action • generating a range of options • initiating innovative solutions
Planning and organising that contribute to long and short-term strategic planning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • managing time and priorities - setting time lines, coordinating tasks for self and with others • being resourceful • taking initiative and making decisions • adapting resource allocations to cope with contingencies • establishing clear project goals and deliverables • allocating people and other resources to tasks • planning the use of resources, including time management • participating in continuous improvement and planning processes • developing a vision and a proactive plan to accompany it • predicting - weighing up risk, evaluating alternatives and applying evaluation criteria • collecting, analysing and organising information • understanding basic business systems and their relationships
Self-management that contributes to employee satisfaction and growth	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • having a personal vision and goals • evaluating and monitoring own performance • having knowledge and confidence in own ideas and visions • articulating own ideas and visions • taking responsibility
Learning that contributes to ongoing improvement and expansion in employee and company operations and outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • managing own learning • contributing to the learning community at the workplace • using a range of mediums to learn - mentoring, peer support and networking, IT and courses • applying learning to technical issues (e.g. learning about products) and people issues

	(e.g. interpersonal and cultural aspects of work) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • having enthusiasm for ongoing learning • being willing to learn in any setting - on and off the job • being open to new ideas and techniques • being prepared to invest time and effort in learning new skills • acknowledging the need to learn in order to accommodate change
Technology that contributes to the effective carrying out of tasks	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • having a range of basic IT skills • applying IT as a management tool • using IT to organise data • being willing to learn new IT skills • having the OHS knowledge to apply technology • having the appropriate physical capacity

Employability Skills Summary

The FNS10 Training Package has an Employability Skills Summary for each qualification. Summaries provide a lens through which to view Employability Skills at the qualification level and capture the key aspects or facets of the Employability Skills that are important to the job roles covered by the qualification. Summaries are designed to assist trainers and assessors to identify and include important industry application of Employability Skills in learning and assessment strategies.

The following is important information for trainers and assessors about Employability Skills Summaries.

- Employability Skills Summaries provide examples of how each skill is applicable to the job roles covered by the qualification.
- Employability Skills Summaries contain general information about industry context which is further explained as measurable outcomes of performance in the units of competency in each qualification.
- The detail in each Employability Skills Summary will vary depending on the range of job roles covered by the qualification in question.
- Employability Skills Summaries are not exhaustive lists of qualification requirements or checklists of performance (which are separate assessment tools that should be designed by trainers and assessors after analysis at the unit level).
- Employability Skills Summaries contain information that may also assist in building learners' understanding of industry and workplace expectations.

Industry Requirements for Employability Skills

Industry endorsed employability skills are explicitly embedded in FNS10 units of competency. The application of each skill will vary depending upon the industry sector and the nature of the competency.

The FNS10 Financial Services Training Package has been designed by industry such that employability skills are clear and can be delivered and assessed in the appropriate work context.

Competency Standards

What is competency?

The broad concept of industry competency concerns the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace. Competency requires the application of specified skills, knowledge and attitudes relevant to effective participation in an industry, industry sector or enterprise.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves performing individual tasks; managing a range of different tasks; responding to contingencies or breakdowns; and, dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace, including working with others. Workplace competency requires the ability to apply relevant skills, knowledge and attitudes consistently over time and in the required workplace situations and environments. In line with this concept of competency Training Packages focus on what is expected of a competent individual in the workplace as an outcome of learning, rather than focussing on the learning process itself.

Competency standards in Training Packages are determined by industry to meet identified industry skill needs. Competency standards are made up of a number of units of competency each of which describes a key function or role in a particular job function or occupation. Each unit of competency within a Training Package is linked to one or more AQF qualifications.

Contextualisation of Units of Competency by RTOs

Registered Training Organisation (RTOs) may contextualise units of competency to reflect local outcomes required. Contextualisation could involve additions or amendments to the unit of competency to suit particular delivery methods, learner profiles, specific enterprise equipment requirements, or to otherwise meet local needs. However, the integrity of the overall intended outcome of the unit of competency must be maintained.

Any contextualisation of units of competency in this endorsed Training Package must be within the bounds of the following advice. In contextualising units of competency, RTOs:

- must not remove or add to the number and content of elements and performance criteria
- may add specific industry terminology to performance criteria where this does not distort or narrow the competency outcomes
- may make amendments and additions to the range statement as long as such changes do not diminish the breadth of application of the competency and reduce its portability, and/or
- may add detail to the evidence guide in areas such as the critical aspects of evidence or resources and infrastructure required where these expand the breadth of the competency but do not limit its use.

Components of Units of Competency

The components of units of competency are summarised below, in the order in which they appear in each unit of competency.

Unit Title

The unit title is a succinct statement of the outcome of the unit of competency. Each unit of competency title is unique, both within and across Training Packages.

Unit Descriptor

The unit descriptor broadly communicates the content of the unit of competency and the skill area it addresses. Where units of competency have been contextualised from units of competency from other endorsed Training Packages, summary information is provided. There may also be a brief second paragraph that describes its relationship with other units of competency, and any licensing requirements.

Employability Skills statement

A standard Employability Skills statement appears in each unit of competency. This statement directs trainers and assessors to consider the information contained in the Employability Skills Summary in which the unit of competency is packaged.

Prerequisite Units (optional)

If there are any units of competency that must be completed before the unit, these will be listed.

Application of the Unit

This sub-section fleshes out the unit of competency's scope, purpose and operation in different contexts, for example, by showing how it applies in the workplace.

Competency Field (Optional)

The competency field either reflects the way the units of competency are categorised in the Training Package or denotes the industry sector, specialisation or function. It is an optional component of the unit of competency.

Sector (optional)

The industry sector is a further categorisation of the competency field and identifies the next classification, for example an elective or supervision field.

Elements of Competency

The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

Performance Criteria

The performance criteria specify the required performance in relevant tasks, roles, skills and in the applied knowledge that enables competent performance. They are usually written in passive voice. Critical terms or phrases may be written in bold italics and then defined in range statement, in the order of their appearance in the performance criteria.

Required Skills and Knowledge

The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined. Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner. Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

Range Statement

The range statement provides a context for the unit of competency, describing essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment, depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts. As applicable, the meanings of key terms used in the performance criteria will also be explained in the range statement.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide is critical in assessment as it provides information to the Registered Training Organisation (RTO) and assessor about how the described competency may be demonstrated. The evidence guide does this by providing a range of evidence for the assessor to make determinations, and by providing the assessment context. The evidence guide describes:

- conditions under which competency must be assessed including variables such as the assessment environment or necessary equipment
- relationships with the assessment of any other units of competency
- suitable methodologies for conducting assessment including the potential for workplace simulation
- resource implications, for example access to particular equipment, infrastructure or situations
- how consistency in performance can be assessed over time, various contexts and with a range of evidence, and expectations at the AQF qualification level involved

Employability Skills in units of competency

The detail and application of Employability Skills facets will vary according to the job-role requirements of each industry. In developing Training Packages, industry stakeholders are consulted to identify appropriate facets of Employability Skills which are incorporated into the relevant units of competency and qualifications.

Employability Skills are not a discrete requirement contained in units of competency (as was the case with Key Competencies). Employability Skills are specifically expressed in the context of the work outcomes described in units of competency and will appear in elements, performance criteria, range statements and evidence guides. As a result, users of Training Packages are required to review the entire unit of competency in order to accurately determine Employability Skills requirements.

How Employability Skills relate to the Key Competencies

The eight nationally agreed Employability Skills now replace the seven Key Competencies in Training Packages. Trainers and assessors who have used Training Packages prior to the introduction of Employability Skills may find the following comparison useful.

Employability Skills	Key Competencies
Communication	Communicating ideas and information
Teamwork	Working with others and in teams
Problem solving	Solving problems Using mathematical ideas and techniques
Initiative and enterprise
Planning and organising	Collecting, analysing and organising information Planning and organising activities
Self-management
Learning
Technology	Using technology

When analysing the above table it is important to consider the relationship and natural overlap of Employability Skills. For example, using technology may involve communication skills and combine the understanding of mathematical concepts.

Explicitly embedding Employability Skills in units of competency

This Training Package seeks to ensure that industry-endorsed Employability Skills are explicitly embedded in units of competency. The application of each skill and the level of detail included in each part of the unit will vary according to industry requirements and the nature of the unit of competency.

Employability Skills must be both explicit and embedded within units of competency. This means that Employability Skills will be:

- embedded in units of competency as part of the other performance requirements that make up the competency as a whole
- explicitly described within units of competency to enable Training Packages users to identify accurately the performance requirements of each unit with regards to Employability Skills.

This Training Package also seeks to ensure that Employability Skills are well-defined and written into units of competency so that they are apparent, clear and can be delivered and assessed as an essential component of unit work outcomes.

The following table contains examples of embedded Employability Skills for each component of a unit of competency. Please note that in the examples below the bracketed skills are provided only for clarification and will not be present in units of competency within this Training Package.

Example Employability Skills unit

Unit component	Example of embedded Employability Skill
Unit Title	Provide management accounting information (communication, planning and organising)
Unit Descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to collect and analyse client information and use it as the basis for determining the level of contact required and to monitor and maintain the quality of the service provided. (self-management, learning)
Element	Use appropriate specialist terminology in written and oral communication related to a claim (communication, problem solving)

Competency Standards - Industry Contextualisation

There are several sets of units of competency in the FNS10 Training Package that can be used across all more a number of the industry sectors. In addition there is significant use of imported units, particularly from the BSB07 Business Services Training Package reflecting common skills between the financial services and other industries.

The packaging of units in qualifications also recognises that specialisations or particular job roles exist within overall broad occupations.

The design of the Package allows for contextualisation at the unit of competency and qualification level depending on the needs of the learner and anticipated career paths. It is an industry expectation that RTOs apply their knowledge and experience of the industry to ensure all training and assessment is in the appropriate context and provides both portable skills and technical specialisation as required.

Assessment Guidelines

Introduction

These Assessment Guidelines provide the endorsed framework for assessment of units of competency in this Training Package. They are designed to ensure that assessment is consistent with the Australian Quality Training Framework (AQTF) Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration. Assessments against the units of competency in this Training Package must be carried out in accordance with these Assessment Guidelines.

Assessment System Overview

This section provides an overview of the requirements for assessment when using this Training Package, including a summary of the AQTF requirements; licensing and registration requirements; and assessment pathways.

Quality assessment underpins the credibility of the vocational education and training sector. The Assessment Guidelines of a Training Package are an important tool in supporting quality assessment.

Assessment within the National Skills Framework is the process of collecting evidence and making judgements about whether competency has been achieved to confirm whether an individual can perform to the standards expected in the workplace, as expressed in the relevant endorsed unit of competency.

Assessment must be carried out in accordance with the:

- benchmarks for assessment
- specific industry requirements
- principles of assessment
- rules of evidence
- assessment requirements set out in the AQTF.

Benchmarks for Assessment

The endorsed units of competency in this Training Package are the benchmarks for assessment. As such, they provide the basis for nationally recognised Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) qualifications and Statements of Attainment issued by Registered Training Organisations (RTOs).

Principles of Assessment

All assessments carried out by RTOs are required to demonstrate compliance with the principles of assessment:

- validity
- reliability
- flexibility
- fairness
- sufficiency.

These principles must be addressed in the:

- design, establishment and management of the assessment system for this Training Package
- development of assessment tools, and
- the conduct of assessment.

Validity

Assessment is valid when the process is sound and assesses what it claims to assess. Validity requires that:

- a) assessment against the units of competency must cover the broad range of skills and knowledge that are essential to competent performance
- b) assessment of knowledge and skills must be integrated with their practical application judgement of competence must be based on sufficient evidence (that is, evidence gathered on
- c) a number of occasions and in a range of contexts using different assessment methods). The specific evidence requirements of each unit of competency provide advice on sufficiency

Reliability

Reliability refers to the degree to which evidence presented for assessment is consistently interpreted and results in consistent assessment outcomes. Reliability requires the assessor to have the required competencies in assessment and relevant vocational competencies (or to assess in conjunction with someone who has the vocational competencies). It can only be achieved when assessors share a common interpretation of the assessment requirements of the unit(s) being assessed.

Flexibility

To be flexible, assessment should reflect the candidate's needs; provide for recognition of competencies no matter how, where or when they have been acquired; draw on a range of methods appropriate to the context, competency and the candidate; and support continuous competency development.

Fairness

Fairness in assessment requires consideration of the individual candidate's needs and characteristics, and any reasonable adjustments that need to be applied to take account of them. It requires clear communication between the assessor and the candidate to ensure that the candidate is fully informed about, understands and is able to participate in, the assessment process, and agrees that the process is appropriate. It also includes an opportunity for the person being assessed to challenge the result of the assessment and to be reassessed if necessary.

Sufficiency

Sufficiency relates to the quality and quantity of evidence assessed. It requires collection of enough appropriate evidence to ensure that all aspects of competency have been satisfied and that competency can be demonstrated repeatedly. Supplementary sources of evidence may be necessary. The specific evidence requirements of each unit of competency provide advice on sufficiency. Sufficiency is also one of the rules of evidence.

Rules of Evidence

The rules of evidence guide the collection of evidence that address the principles of validity and reliability, guiding the collection of evidence to ensure that it is valid, sufficient, current and authentic.

Valid

Valid evidence must relate directly to the requirements of the unit of competency. In ensuring evidence is valid, assessors must ensure that the evidence collected supports demonstration of the outcomes and performance requirements of the unit of competency together with the knowledge and skills necessary for competent performance. Valid evidence must encapsulate the breadth and depth of the unit of competency, which will necessitate using a number of different assessment methods.

Sufficient

Sufficiency relates to the quality and quantity of evidence assessed. It requires collection of enough appropriate evidence to ensure that all aspects of competency have been satisfied and that competency can be demonstrated repeatedly. Supplementary sources of evidence may be necessary. The specific evidence requirements of each unit of competency provide advice on sufficiency.

Current

In assessment, currency relates to the age of the evidence presented by a candidate to demonstrate that they are still competent. Competency requires demonstration of current performance, so the evidence collected must be from either the present or the very recent past.

Authentic

To accept evidence as authentic, an assessor must be assured that the evidence presented for assessment is the candidate's own work.

Assessment Requirements of the Australian Quality Training Framework

Assessment leading to nationally recognised AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment in the vocational education and training sector must meet the requirements of the AQTF as expressed in the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Registration.

The AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration can be downloaded from <www.training.com.au>.

The following points summarise the assessment requirements.

Registration of Training Organisations

Assessment must be conducted by, or on behalf of, an RTO formally registered by a State or Territory Registering Body in accordance with the AQTF. The RTO must have the specific units of competency and/or AQF qualifications on its scope of registration.

Quality Training and Assessment

Each RTO must provide quality training and assessment across all its operations. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration, Standard 1.

Assessor Competency Requirements

Each person involved in training and assessment must be competent for the functions they perform. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration, Standard 1 for assessor (and trainer) competency requirements. See also the AQTF 2010 Users' Guide to the Essential Standards for Registration – Appendix 2.

Assessment Requirements

The RTOs assessments, including RPL, must meet the requirements of the relevant endorsed Training Package. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Assessment Strategies

Each RTO must have strategies for training and assessment that meet the requirements of the relevant Training Package or accredited course and are developed in consultation with industry stakeholders. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

National Recognition

Each RTO must recognise the AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment issued by any other RTO. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Access and Equity and Client Outcomes

Each RTO must adhere to the principles of access and equity and maximise outcomes for its clients. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Monitoring Assessments

Training and/or assessment provided on behalf of the RTO must be monitored to ensure that it is in accordance with all aspects of the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Recording Assessment Outcomes

Each RTO must manage records to ensure their accuracy and integrity. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Issuing AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment

Each RTO must issue AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment that meet the requirements of the current AQF Implementation Handbook and the endorsed Training Packages within the scope of its registration. An AQF qualification is issued once the full requirements for a qualification, as specified in the nationally endorsed Training Package are met. A Statement of Attainment is issued when an individual has completed one or more units of competency from nationally recognised qualification(s)/courses(s). See the AQTF and the edition of the AQF Implementation Handbook – available on the AQF Council website <www.aqf.edu.au>.

Licensing/Registration Requirements

Licensing and/or registration applies to several industry sectors covered by the FNS10 Financial Services Training Package under Commonwealth, State or Territory legislation.

The Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC)

The Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) administers the Australian Financial Services Licensing (AFSL) system covering financial planning and advisory services.

The FNS10 Training Package qualifications in financial planning, in particular FNS50610 Diploma of Financial Planning, FNS60410 Advanced Diploma of Financial Planning, FNS60710 Advanced Diploma of Financial Licensing Management and others that involve providing advice on financial products include units of competency that ASIC has designated as the minimum to meet their licensing educational requirements.

ASIC will also supervise The Australian Credit License (ACL) regime introduced on 1 January 2010 through enactment of the National Consumer Credit Protection Bill 2009. This requires all banks, credit unions, finance companies and other lenders, known in the Bill as credit providers, and all credit advisers and mortgage and credit brokers, known as credit service providers to hold an ACL.

Effectively a person or entity will need an ACL where they engage in any of the following credit activities:

- lending money or collecting money due under a credit contract,
- acting as a broker or intermediary (such as an aggregator or mortgage manager),
- providing assistance to a consumer about a specific credit product.

Conveyancing

Conveyancing is also regulated in the States where conveyancers operate and the FNS50411 Diploma of Conveyancing and FNS60311 Advanced Diploma of Conveyancing qualifications reflect the various competencies currently required to meet local licensing regimes. The conveyancing industry should agree nationally consistent licensing by 2013 and the current FNS10 qualifications have been designed to facilitate this transition.

The Tax Practitioner's Board (TPB)

The Tax Practitioner's Board manages a national registration system for persons preparing Business Activity and Instalment Activity Statements (BAS and IAS). Competencies in the FNS40211 Certificate IV in Bookkeeping, FNS40611 Certificate IV in Accounting, FNS50210 Diploma of Accounting and FNS60210 Advanced Diploma of Accounting qualifications currently cover these requirements.

Exposure drafts of the Board's current position on BAS agent registration transition arrangements can be viewed at:

http://www.tpb.gov.au/TPB/board/Exposure_drafts/TPB/TheBoard/Exposure_Drafts.aspx.

The TPB also registers tax agents and is developing further advice on requirements for legal competency that may impact on the FNS10 accounting qualifications.

Many financial services job roles will involve compliance with government legislation. An example is the Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing Act 2006, which imposes a number of obligations on businesses including banks, credit unions, building societies and trustees when they provide these designated services. These obligations include:

- customer due diligence (identification, verification of identity and ongoing monitoring of transactions)
- reporting (suspicious matters, threshold transactions and international funds transfer instructions)
- record keeping, and
- establishing and maintaining the AML/CTF program.

The FNS51710 Diploma of Anti Money Launder and Counter Terrorism Financing (AML-CTF) Management is designed to cover these compliance requirements.

Requirements for Assessors

In addition to the requirements specified within AQTF2010, it is recommended that assessors have at least three years recent experience in the specific industry sector they are assessing within. As the financial services industry is a dynamic and growing industry, this will ensure that assessors have a comprehensive current knowledge of the industry and the job or role against which performance is being assessed.

For those assessors assessing the ASIC advisory units of competence, it is additionally recommended that they are also RG146 compliant.

Requirements for Candidates

Individuals being assessed under statutory licensing and industry registration systems must comply with training and experience requirements additional to the minimum requirements identified in this Training Package. These additional requirements apply to any person who provides financial product advice to retail clients and are a pre-condition of an organisation gaining an AFSL.

The minimum training requirements are specified in ASIC's updated Regulatory Guideline 146 (RG146). These requirements have been reflected in a number of specific ASIC advisory units of competency within the Training Package.

The updated RG146 is accessible from the ASIC website at: <http://www.asic.gov.au> and identifies key sectors within the financial services industry:

Tier 1 sectors

- Financial Planning
- Superannuation
- Self Managed Superannuation
- Managed Investments
- First Home Saver Accounts (containing an investment component)
- Securities
- Derivatives
- Margin Lending Facilities
- Foreign Exchange
- Insurance Broking
- Life Insurance
- General Insurance (personal sickness and accident)

Tier 2 sectors

- basic deposit products and non-cash payment facilities
- general insurance (except for personal injury and accident insurance).

Depending on the type/class of product a financial adviser wishes to provide advice in, the adviser must be competent against specific ASIC advisory units within the Training Package.

Organisations that wish to use the FNS10 Financial Services Training Package for ASIC compliance should ensure that they choose units which ASIC has identified as covering the knowledge and skills required for the appropriate educational level for Tier 1 and Tier 2.

Requirements for RTOs

Assessment in a simulated environment

Units of Competency in the Financial Services Training Package may be assessed in the workplace or in a simulated environment.

Assessment within a simulated environment may be required because:

- suitable employment and/or work experience is not always available
- some workplaces or work situations do not use or allow the application of the competency required
- conducting assessment within the workplace may be unacceptably disruptive to work requirements of the business
- it is sometimes appropriate to practice skills in live settings prior to the acquisition of competency, particularly in potentially dangerous situations or where valuable equipment may be at risk.

Given that simulation may be used and is often indicated as an option for assessment within the Financial Services Training Package the following advice is provided:

In order to be valid and reliable, the simulation must closely represent what actually occurs in the workplace, and should seek to replicate an actual work setting. It is critical that the designer of the simulation is thoroughly familiar with the application of the competency and is experienced in current and relevant workplace practices. In deciding whether a simulation or an assessment environment has been adequately designed, the following questions should be asked:

Are there opportunities to:

- test the full range of equipment?
- use up to date equipment and software?
- reflect time pressures and deadlines?
- show the complexity of dealing with multiple tasks?
- involve prioritising among competing tasks?
- deal with customers, including difficult ones?
- work with others in a team?
- communicate with diverse groups?
- find, discuss and test solutions to problems?
- explore health and safety issues?
- answer practically oriented, applied knowledge questions?
- show the level of written and verbal expression sufficient for, but not exceeding, the work requirements?

ASIC Advisory units of competency

The ASIC Advisory units of competency in this Training Package provide the basis for statutory licensing and industry registration arrangements. To provide delivery and assessment solutions that satisfy these licensing and registration arrangements, RTOs must meet the following additional requirements:

Licence/Registration	Jurisdiction	Requirements
Australian Financial	Australian	For RTO courses to be recognised for the

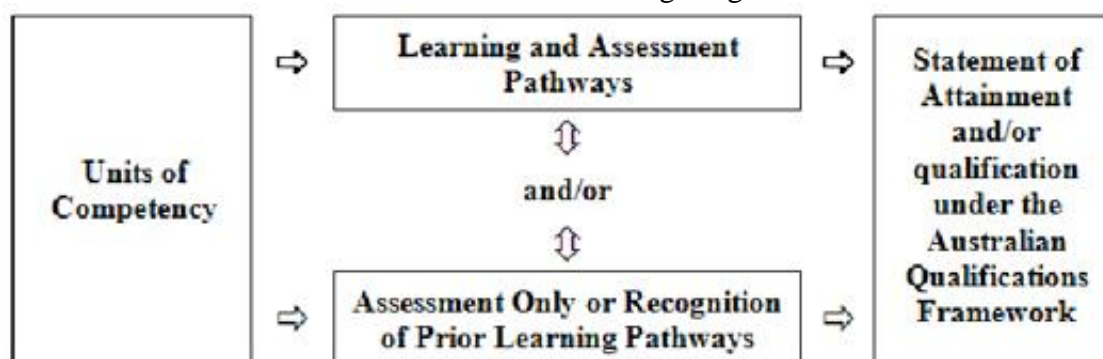

Services Licence (AFSL)	Securities And Investment Commission (ASIC)	purposes of meeting minimum training standards, which are conditional to gaining a AFSL, the RTOs courses must include the required ASIC advisory units and be listed on ASIC's Training Register. This is in addition to the qualifications being on scope of the RTOs registration. RTOs must make a separate application to ASIC for their courses to be included on the Register. For information go to www.asic.gov.au.

Pathways

The competencies in this Training Package may be attained in a number of ways including through:

- formal or informal education and training
- experiences in the workplace
- general life experience, and/or
- any combination of the above.

Assessment under this Training Package leading to an AQF qualification or Statement of Attainment may follow a learning and assessment pathway, or a recognition pathway, or a combination of the two as illustrated in the following diagram.

Each of these assessment pathways leads to full recognition of competencies held – the critical issue is that the candidate is competent, not how the competency was acquired.

Assessment, by any pathway, must comply with the assessment requirements set out in the Assessment Guidelines of the Training Package, the AQTF and, where relevant, the Australian Qualifications Framework.

Learning and Assessment Pathways

Usually, learning and assessment are integrated, with evidence being collected and feedback provided to the candidate at anytime throughout the learning and assessment process.

Learning and assessment pathways may include structured programs in a variety of contexts using a range of strategies to meet different learner needs. Structured learning and assessment programs could be: group-based, work-based, project-based, self-paced, action learning-based; conducted by distance or e-learning; and/or involve practice and experience in the workplace.

Learning and assessment pathways to suit Australian Apprenticeships have a mix of formal structured training and structured workplace experience with formative assessment activities through which candidates can acquire and demonstrate skills and knowledge from the relevant units of competency.

Credit Pathways

Credit is the value assigned for the recognition of equivalence in content between different types of learning and/or qualifications which reduces the volume of learning required to achieve a qualification.

Credit arrangements must be offered by all RTOs that offer Training Package qualifications. Each RTO must have a systematic institutional approach with clear, accessible and transparent policies and procedures.

Competencies already held by individuals can be formally assessed against the units of competency in this Training Package, and should be recognised regardless of how, when or where they were acquired, provided that the learning is relevant to the unit of competency outcomes.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) is an assessment process which determines the credit outcomes of an individual application for credit.

The availability of Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) provides all potential learners with access to credit opportunities.

The recognition of prior learning pathway is appropriate for candidates who have previously attained skills and knowledge and who, when enrolling in qualifications, seek to shorten the duration of their training and either continue or commence working. This may include the following groups of people:

- existing workers;
- individuals with overseas qualifications;
- recent migrants with established work histories;
- people returning to the workplace; and
- people with disabilities or injuries requiring a change in career.

As with all assessment, RPL assessment should be undertaken by academic or teaching staff with expertise in the subject, content of skills area, as well as knowledge of and expertise in RPL assessment policies and procedures.

Assessment methods used for RPL should provide a range of ways for individuals to demonstrate that they have met the required outcomes and can be granted credit. These might include:

- questioning (oral or written)
- consideration of a portfolio and review of contents
- consideration of third party reports and/or other documentation such as documentation such as articles, reports, project material, papers, testimonials or other products prepared by the RPL applicant that relate to the learning outcomes of the relevant qualification component
- mapping of learning outcomes from prior formal or non-formal learning to the relevant qualification components
- observation of performance, and
- participation in structured assessment activities the individual would normally be required to undertake if they were enrolled in the qualification component/s.

In a Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) pathway, the candidate provides current, quality evidence of their competency against the relevant unit of competency. This process may be directed by the candidate and verified by the assessor. Where the outcomes of this process indicate that the candidate is competent, structured training is not required. The RPL requirements of the AQTF must be met.

As with all assessment, the assessor must be confident that the evidence indicates that the candidate is currently competent against the endorsed unit of competency. This evidence may take a variety of forms and might include certification, references from past employers, testimonials from clients, work samples and/or observation of the candidate. The onus is on candidates to provide sufficient evidence to satisfy assessors that they currently hold the relevant competencies. In judging evidence, the assessor must ensure that the evidence of prior learning is:

- authentic (the candidate's own work);
- valid (directly related to the current version of the relevant endorsed unit of competency);
- reliable (shows that the candidate consistently meets the endorsed unit of competency);
- current (reflects the candidate's current capacity to perform the aspect of the work covered by the endorsed unit of competency); and
- sufficient (covers the full range of elements in the relevant unit of competency and addresses the four dimensions of competency, namely task skills, task management skills, contingency management skills, and job/role environment skills).

Credit Transfer

Credit transfer is a process which provides learners with agreed and consistent credit outcomes based on equivalences in content between matched qualifications.

This process involves education institutions:

- mapping, comparing and evaluating the extent to which the defined learning outcomes and assessment requirements of the individual components of one qualification are equivalent to the learning outcomes and assessment requirements of the individual components of another qualification
- making an educational judgment of the credit outcomes to be assigned between the matched components of the two qualifications
- setting out the agreed credit outcomes in a documented arrangement or agreement, and
- publicising the arrangement/agreement and credit available.

Combination of Pathways

Credit may be awarded on the basis of a combination of credit transfer plus an individual RPL assessment for additional learning. Once credit has been awarded on the basis of RPL, subsequent credit transfer based on these learning outcomes should not include revisiting the RPL assessment but should be based on credit transfer or articulation or other arrangements between providers.

Where candidates for assessment have gained competencies through work and life experience and gaps in their competence are identified, or where they require training in new areas, a combination of pathways may be appropriate.

In such situations, the candidate may undertake an initial assessment to determine their current competency. Once current competency is identified, a structured learning and assessment program ensures that the candidate acquires the required additional competencies identified as gaps.

Assessor Requirements

This section identifies the specific requirements on the vocational competence and experience for assessors, to ensure that they meet the needs of industry and their obligations under AQTF, and clarifies how others may contribute to the assessment process where one person alone does not hold all the required competencies.

Assessor Competencies

The AQTF specifies mandatory competency requirements for assessors. For information, Element 1.4 from the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration follows:

1.4 Training and assessment are conducted by trainers and assessors who:

- a) have the necessary training and assessment competencies as determined by the National Quality Council or its successors, and
- b) have the relevant vocational competencies at least to the level being delivered or assessed, and
- c) can demonstrate current industry skills directly relevant to the training/assessment being undertaken, and
- d) continue to develop their Vocational Education and Training (VET) knowledge and skills as well as their industry currency and trainer/assessor competence.

* See AQTF 2010 Users' Guide to the Essential Standards for Registration – Appendix 2

Industry Assessment Contextualisation

Training and Assessment for People with Specific Needs

Disability Standards for Education were formed under the Disability Discrimination Act 1992 and were introduced in August 2005; they clarify the obligations of education and training providers to ensure that students who have a disability are able to access and participate in education without experiencing discrimination.

Good vocational education training and assessment is often about making adjustments to what we do to meet the learning support needs of individuals. The information provided below is aimed at assisting teachers/trainers to meet the reasonable adjustment needs of people who have a disability.

What is a disability?

A disability presents some impairment to everyday activity. Some people with a disability do not have any impairments resulting from their disability. For example, a person who has a hearing impairment which is compensated for by a hearing aid may function without any adjustments. While some people with a disability may have an impairment because of the environment, not the disability itself. For example, hearing loss can be accentuated in a room with loud, competing noise and poor acoustics.

A disability may affect or relate to a range of human functions including mobility, stamina, lifting ability, memory, vision, hearing, speech, comprehension and mood swings. This may be due to accidents, illness or birth.

Adjustments in training and assessment

An open mind, common sense and tailoring to individual circumstances will, as often as not, ensure individuals achieve the standards employers and training providers expect. Reasonable adjustments need only be that - reasonable. It is about identifying what adjustments might reasonably be made and how they may be put into place.

Training and assessment can be made more appropriate and fair for a person who has a disability through attitude, preparation and application.

Attitude

The attitude of others is often the greatest barrier for people who have a disability. While most people who have a disability will only ever require minor adjustments to ensure learning is positive, some will require additional support. There are many support agencies that can provide advice, however teachers/trainers may need to take additional time to ensure their teaching/training meets the learning support needs of the individual concerned.

Positive language creates an atmosphere of mutual respect, which is essential to learning. For example, using language that identifies learners as people rather than language that identifies them by one of their characteristics conveys that the person is more important than the characteristic, such as the difference between a 'person who has an intellectual disability' and an 'intellectually disabled person'. A person who has an intellectual disability could also be identified by a range of equally important characteristics - height, age, sporting interests. However, the term 'intellectually disabled person' refers to the disability as the major, and often only, defining characteristic.

Preparation

It is important to identify any functional issues arising from the nature and extent of a person's disability. This can usually be done by discussing such issues with the individual. In most cases, this consultation will identify reasonable adjustment needs which can be put into place. There are many simple things that teachers/trainers can do to make reasonable adjustments to enable individuals who have a disability to succeed in training and assessment. In some cases, professional support may be required.

Application

Once reasonable adjustments have been implemented it is important to monitor and evaluate what has been done to ensure the best environment for continuous learning because:

- adjustments may only need to be temporary - i.e. mechanisms may only need to be in place during an induction period or due to a temporary disability, in which case evaluation will ensure appropriateness without the need for ongoing monitoring
- adjustments may need reinforcing - when adjustments need to be ongoing, monitoring may reinforce patterns of behaviour in order for them to become 'natural'
- adjustments may need improving - where adjustments are ongoing or substantial, a commitment to continuous improvement is recommended through monitoring.

In most cases an informal discussion with the person concerned may be all that is necessary. However, should adjustments be substantial, or if a learner is not acquiring competence at a reasonable rate, a more formal process may be required. This may include:

- performance indicators - training providers, learners and employers should have agreed indicators of performance which can be measured and monitored
- independent support - a third party independent of the training and/or assessment environment may need to be involved
- experimentation - if existing adjustments are not proving satisfactory, creative solutions may be needed
- continuing review - formal monitoring is encouraged if adjustments are changed or if substantial adjustments are necessary.

For further information on training and assessment for people with specific needs, the DEEWR website has information about the Disability Coordination Officer Programme, which 'provides information, co-ordination and referral services for people with a disability interested in or enrolled in post-school education and training:

<http://www.deewr.gov.au/Skills/Programs/Support/NDCO/Pages/default.aspx>.

Reasonable adjustment

Below are some of the practical things that can be done as part of providing reasonable adjustment to learners with specific support needs to enable them to undertake training and assessment. Clearly, each case will be different and will need to be discussed with the person and in some cases expert help will be needed, at least in the initial stages.

Type of Disability	Reasonable Adjustment
Acquired brain injury	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Memory aids (posters, notes, etc.) • Reflective listening skills • Stress minimisation • Time and patience
Hearing impairment	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Audio loops for people using hearing aids • Plain English documents • Fire and alarm systems with flashing lights • Sign language interpreters • Telephone typewriters
Intellectual disability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Additional time • Assessment which is appropriate to the skill (i.e. avoiding written assessment for practical tasks) • Mentors • Plain English documents • Practical learning sessions • Repetition of learning exercises
Mobility impairment	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Access to aids such as for holding documents • Adjustable tables • Lifting limits • Note taking support • Oral rather than written presentations • Personal computer • Wheelchair access
Psychiatric disability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Identification and avoidance of stresses • Ongoing rather than formal assessments • Reflective listening skills • 'Time-out' breaks in assessment
Speech impairment	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Information summaries • Stress minimisation • Time and patience • Written rather than verbal opportunities
Vision impairment	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Additional writing time for assignments/tests • Audio tapes • Braille translations • Enlarged computer screen images • Enlarged text and images • Good lighting or reading lamps • Guide dog provision • Informing the person before moving furniture

Assessment for Indigenous Organisations

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people have expressed concern about the importance of developing assessment processes along appropriate lines.

There are four main areas of concern:

- diversity
- cultural appropriateness
- community control
- accreditation.

Diversity

The term diversity is used to emphasise the wide range of opinion, aspirations, community circumstances, cultural practices, geographic locations, and social, economic and political conditions that exist throughout Australia and the need to guard against assumptions that all communities are the same.

One approach is to distinguish between remote, rural and urban settings. These settings suggest differences that may be relevant to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisations, including:

- culture
- language
- history
- social make up
- geography
- social and economic infrastructure
- economy
- political structure.

These factors suggest that training and assessment, in order to be relevant to the needs of any particular Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisation, should address each situation as unique.

Cultural appropriateness

The term culture is used in a broad sense, it refers to:

- values, social beliefs and customs e.g. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander law, land and family and kinship systems
- protocols of behaviour and interaction e.g. cultural authority, gender, kinship
- ways of thinking e.g. learning styles
- language, both traditional and Aboriginal English
- lifestyles
- local history
- location e.g. region and place.

A particularly important aspect of cultural appropriateness is that of learning styles. There is evidence that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, both traditional and contemporary, approach learning differently from the Western intellectual tradition, which is relevant to effective training and assessment.

It is understood that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people may:

- learn better in groups than individually
- learn better in the surroundings of their community than in an institutional environment
- prefer oral communications to written forms
- learn on the basis of trial and error in the presence of an experienced person in preference to concept building approaches
- have a highly developed sense of spatial relations by which they learn; hence stories, maps and pictures would be preferable to oral explanations.

To be effective, it is necessary that training and assessment recognises, adopts and practises appropriate delivery and assessment approaches.

Non-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander trainers and assessors need information on aspects of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander culture. They need to work closely with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to adopt practices that reflect Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander approaches. The community should be asked to identify experts to provide information and to assist with assessment of relevant protocols, for example, where required.

There are a number of ways a Registered Training Organisation (RTO) can establish and maintain culturally appropriate training and assessment practices, including:

- ensuring a high proportion of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander participation in all aspects of planning, development, delivery and evaluation
- establishing and maintaining a collaborative relationship with local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities
- as a mainstream (non-Indigenous) RTO, establishing auspice relationships with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisations and individuals, including direct and indirect involvement of persons identified as appropriate by the local community
- ensuring ongoing training of non-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff at all levels of the RTO, delivered by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander personnel.

Community control

The term community control is synonymous with self determination, self management, etc. and underpins most community aspirations. It is of fundamental concern to people who see themselves as having been dispossessed by colonisation.

The essence of control is control of decision-making. In order to be able to do this, people need all relevant information, relevant competencies and recognition of their own structures and processes.

Among other things, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people seek control over their training. It is necessary, therefore, that they participate in all stages of planning, development, delivery and evaluation, in meaningful ways. One way is for communities to have control of the contract for training initiatives.

It is important that training providers and assessors respect and conform to the practice of community control which underpins this field within the BSB07 Business Services Training Package.

Accreditation

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people have said for a long time that their involvement in training has not been formally recognised and that many of the skills they utilise in managing their organisations and delivering services to their communities have not been valued.

The first issue may have arisen because much of the training that has been delivered to communities has been customised to particular situations, has not been assessed on an individual basis if at all, and has been delivered by unregistered personnel.

Secondly, until this time, recognition of current competence (RCC) has been under-utilised.

Individuals may demonstrate competence in complete units of competency through formal training, informal training or the recognition of current competence/skills, resulting in qualifications/Statements of Attainment being awarded as appropriate.

In the community group setting, an important feature of likely relevance for assessment is that participants may vary with respect to previous education and training experience, and possess diverse skills in literacy and/or numeracy.

However, diverse numeracy and literacy skills are not a barrier to sophisticated thought, and care must be taken not to employ assessment strategies that rely on numeracy and literacy skills where they are not intrinsically required by the unit of competency being assessed.

A flexible approach to assessment will be required by RTOs in order to meet the requirements of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisations and individuals under this domain within the BSB07 Business Services Training Package.

Assessment in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Communities

The guiding principles that underpin assessment include:

- assessment should be transparent i.e. clearly seen and understood by the candidate and others
- assessment should empower the candidate on the basis of consent, self assessment and responsibility for the process
- any Board members or prospective Board members should have opportunities to demonstrate their competence/skills
- Board activities may be used as the context for assessment where possible (known as on-the-job assessment or workplace assessment); there may also be opportunities to include evidence from other relevant situations
- assessment should involve designated community experts working in collaboration with RTO assessors in order to provide appropriate recognition of cultural and community knowledge and skills
- assessments must provide constructive feedback to candidates and support for further competency development
- assessments must provide a Statement of Attainment or qualification listing the units of competency achieved
- records of candidate achievement maintained by the RTO must record the Statement of Attainment listing the units of competency achieved or qualifications achieved as required by the AQTF 2007
- a record of demonstrated competencies will assist in role clarification and performance appraisals in the workplace.

Given the importance of the assessment to the candidate and the Board, the assessor must make every effort to ensure that assessment is conducted with the highest level of professionalism and integrity.

Units of competency with a cultural content, including the following of local protocols, will require knowledge of these cultural matters by the assessor. As these matters are often governed by local rules of access to such knowledge, only those people with the knowledge can genuinely assess these aspects of the competency or provide guidance on their assessment.

Discussion must take place with the community and agreement reached on how these matters are assessed. For non-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander RTOs, this will usually mean the use of auspice arrangements with appropriate people or knowledge experts, identified by the community.

It should also be noted that for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people being assessed, these aspects of competency will almost invariably have been attained through life experience. This must also be taken into account in the assessment procedures relating to cultural matters.

Assessors may exercise limited discretion in response to organisational or individual requirements, but any changes must not alter the meaning of the unit of competency or the elements of competency.

Candidates must be informed of the right to access grievance procedures.

VET in Schools

VET in Schools provides for nationally recognised vocational education and training (VET) based on industry standards undertaken as part of a senior secondary certificate.

Successful completion of a VET in Schools program enables a student to gain a nationally recognised AQF qualification, usually at the same time as the school based qualification.

How are VET in Schools programs structured?

VET in Schools programs are packaged and delivered in a variety of ways across Australia. There are three main types of delivery arrangements for VET in Schools programs:

- schools can be a Registered Training Organisation (RTO) in their own right
- school sectoral bodies (such as Boards of Studies or regional offices) can hold RTO status on behalf of a group of schools
- schools can work together in a partnership with an RTO.

States and territories across Australia package VET in Schools programs differently, according to their senior secondary certificate requirements. Generally schools may offer VET in Schools programs as:

- stand-alone
- embedded
- combination of stand-alone and embedded
- school based New Apprenticeship.

Stand-alone refers to the delivery of a VET course or qualification outside of a school subject framework.

Embedding refers to an arrangement whereby VET units of competency are delivered within a general education course, producing both vocational and general education outcomes. This aims to minimise the assessment workload of students by avoiding unnecessary duplication. In some states and territories, embedding is necessary to provide recognition of VET within the senior secondary certificate. In others, stand-alone VET components contribute towards the senior secondary certificate.

Given the considerable variation in the manner in which qualifications and units of competency are used across Australia, the relevant authority in each state and territory will provide advice and guidance as to the specific VET in Schools programs that can be undertaken.

Appropriate Qualifications for VET in Schools

IBSA acknowledges links between schools, businesses and the community, and strongly supports young people combining schooling with VET and workplace learning.

It is essential that all VET qualifications gained through a VET in Schools program are consistent with the outcomes detailed in the Training Package.

The AQTF Standards for Registered Training Organisations set out minimum competency standards for staff responsible for the delivery of training and the conducting of assessments; and they ensure that VET specialists have skills and competencies consistent with Training Package requirements. All schools using their own teachers for VET delivery must also be aware of the AQTF requirement for assessors to hold relevant vocational competencies, at least equal to that being delivered and assessed, in addition to teaching and assessment competence.

Schools that are RTOs generally deliver Certificate I and II qualifications. Some schools, in most states and territories, may also offer part or all of Certificate III and IV qualifications. However, the delivery of these higher qualifications often requires a partnership arrangement and presents some significant challenges as detailed below.

Schools are encouraged to establish partnerships with industry and effective work placement arrangements to maximise the quality of outcomes for students and industry alike. Recognition of competence gained through voluntary, part-time or vacation work not directly related to the industry focus of the qualification should also be considered.

Certificates I and II

Certificate I and Certificate II qualifications are the most suitable for use in VET in Schools programs. These qualifications are often preparatory in nature or include skills that can be readily trained and assessed in a school setting. For example, many of the units in Certificate I and II, Information Technology or Business qualifications describe skills that are considered foundation skills for any employment situation. However, even at this level, schools must ensure adequate attention is paid to the effective assessment of competencies dealing with work environment or Employability Skills.

Certificate III

The AQF descriptor for Certificate III qualifications includes performance expectations such as skills transference to new environments and the prospect of potential responsibility for others. A Certificate III qualification is premised on the understanding that it provides a vocational outcome in its own right and stretches beyond 'preparation for work'. It may even reflect a trade outcome. Some Certificate III qualifications, or the units of competency packaged to make up the qualification.

For these reasons, effective learning and assessment in a completely institutional environment is extremely difficult to achieve. While some 'technical' skills may be effectively learnt and assessed in an appropriately structured, simulated environment, work environment related competencies pose significant challenges. In these cases, Statements of Attainment for individual units are usually more appropriate than the award of full qualifications.

Certificate IV

At this AQF level, individuals need to demonstrate competence characterised by a degree of unpredictability, varying contexts, critical appraisal and management of diverse and perhaps questionable information and the assumption of responsibility for the quality and quantity of one's own work and often the work of others. Some Training Packages consider their Certificate IV graduates to be 'associate professionals and supervisors'.

It is highly unlikely that a full Certificate IV qualification could be achieved in a school environment, other than through a school based New Apprenticeship.

Work Placement

Work placement usually involves students spending an extended period of time in a workplace gaining experience and skills, and undergoing an assessment process related to the attainment of a qualification in a specific occupational field.

An essential feature of school-industry programs is that they involve students spending some time learning in a workplace. In recent years an increasing number of effective structured workplace learning programs have made significant progress towards greater workplace integrity for those industry training programs that are delivered predominantly off-the-job. The implementation of Training Packages means that structured workplace learning must be a consideration for all RTOs, not only schools, in the delivery of training programs.

Principles for quality workplace learning

The Ministerial Council on Employment, Education, Training and Youth Affairs (MCEETYA) endorsed the Principles for Quality Workplace Learning for school students engaged in VET programs throughout Australia. All states and territories apply the principles to their work placement programs although the nature and extent of work placement programs varies across states and territories.

The broad MCEETYA principles are documented below.

Quality workplace learning is integrated into a program

- It operates within a framework which provides the opportunity for all students to access it, though not all students may choose to do so; and
- It operates within the context of vocational courses, which are recognised by industry, are responsive to industry needs and forms part of a student's exit credential.

Quality workplace learning is structured

- It has a clearly articulated and documented purpose;
- There are clearly identified and documented learning outcomes for students within accredited programs, which are linked to post school qualifications;
- They are of sufficient duration and depth to enable students to acquire a reasonable understanding of the enterprise/industry to demonstrate competence according to industry standards of at least level 1 of the AQF;
- There is a matching between the students' skills and interests and the work placements; and
- Students, teachers and employers are thoroughly prepared beforehand so that the expectations and outcomes of the work placement are clearly understood by all parties.

Quality workplace learning is monitored

- The learning is coordinated by personnel with appropriate expertise and adequate resources; and
- Support should be made available to students and employers throughout the course of the work placement.

Quality workplace learning is regulated

There are clearly stated procedures designed to ensure that:

- Students are protected from moral and physical danger;
- Students work in a non-discriminatory and harassment free environment;
- Students receive appropriate training and instruction in occupational health and safety; and
- Students are not exploited by being continuously engaged in a production or service capacity or used to substitute for the employment of employees and payment of appropriate wages.
- The students are required to understand the roles and responsibilities of employees in the workplace and are expected to follow the directions of the workplace supervisors and the other employees.

Quality workplace learning is assessed

- The assessment, according to industry standards, is of students' competencies achieved in the workplace which contributes to the overall assessment of the program; and
- There are mechanisms for the recording and reporting of students' competencies.

There is a strong correlation between these MCEETYA quality principles and the OECD characteristics of high quality learning programs detailed below.

The major 14-country study entitled From Initial Education to Working Life: Making Transitions Work by the OECD identified 10 characteristics of high quality workplace learning programs. These are:

1. Work placements that are long enough for real learning to take place.

2. Systematic analysis of the training capacity of the workplace, to see what it can realistically supply.
3. A formal training plan, setting out what has to be taught and learned, and clarifying the work based and school based parts of a student's program.
4. Employer involvement in student selection for work placements.
5. The presence of a trained program coordinator, able to liaise between the school and the firm and troubleshoot when problems occur.
6. The use of qualified, highly competent workers as workplace trainers or mentors.
7. Regular face-to-face contact between the coordinators and employers and in-firm supervisors.
8. Monitoring of the students on the job by the program coordinator.
9. The evaluation of student performance against the training plan at the end of the placement, with the evaluation carried out by the job supervisor and coordinator jointly.
10. Deliberate efforts by schools to relate what has been learned at work to students' school based learning. (OECD, 2000, From Initial Education to Working Life: Making Transitions Work. Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development, Paris.)

Effective work placement is characterised by:

- activities that complement off-the-job learning programs
- clearly articulated and documented purpose
- development of appropriate attitudes towards work
- development of competence in designated industry skills and Employability Skills
- facility for on-the-job practice of skills acquired in a classroom
- flexibility
- learning in a range of behaviours appropriate to the relevant industry
- opportunities for work based assessment
- regular and frequent use of current technology and equipment
- relevance to the VET qualification being undertaken
- recognition of student readiness
- support of industry partners.

Beyond the above, a number of other provisions are necessary for a successful work placement program. The credibility of work placements and any resultant recognition of competence requires a degree of 'seriousness' if the outcomes are to be valued by individuals and industry clients of the VET system.

It is suggested that stakeholders involved in the planning and management of work placements carefully consider and implement the following general principles:

- That the RTO assume responsibility for finding placements and validating the arrangements.
- That the workplace has the appropriate resources, tools and staff to conduct the placement with compliance to any legislative requirements.
- That there is regular validation by the RTO that the student and assessor, where relevant, are operating according to RTO AQTF standards.
- That a student on work placement must be covered by injury insurance.
- That there is a formal contract setting out each party's responsibilities and obligations.
- That, where possible, the workplace has on site a qualified workplace trainer and assessor in 'direct line' control of the student (to avoid training and assessment by 'proxy').
- That if the placement is for assessment only then there must be clearly documented assessment tasks specifically related to the unit being assessed and evidence retained to support achievement of competence (for both best practice recording purposes and audit/appeal).
- That if the placement also includes training then any 'academic pass' cannot be bestowed prior to the placement as clearly all of the learning components have not been undertaken nor can they be assessed in advance if they have not been learned.
- That the training be directly related to achievement of competence while recognising the likely acquisition of other skills and knowledge.
- That where assessment occurs it be clearly related to a unit of competency relevant to the work placement.
- That where more than one performance criteria (possibly over more than one unit) is being assessed there must be a clearly linked and documented relationship between the assessment and the PC.
- That the qualifications level be appropriate in context i.e. if it is advanced programming there must be an advanced programming task observed and assessed
- That the actual variables of the PC be documented for audit purposes and for verification of appropriateness of the range in the work placement.

In some state and territory school systems, part-time student work in an appropriate workplace may be used to fulfil work placement requirements and virtual/simulated work placements may also be legitimate.

Designing Assessment Tools

This section provides an overview on the use and development of assessment tools.

Use of Assessment Tools

Assessment tools provide a means of collecting the evidence that assessors use in making judgements about whether candidates have achieved competency.

There is no set format or process for the design, production or development of assessment tools. Assessors may use prepared assessment tools, such as those specifically developed to support this Training Package, or they may develop their own.

Using Prepared Assessment Tools

If using prepared assessment tools, assessors should ensure these relate to the current version of the relevant unit of competency. The current unit of competency can be checked on the National Register <www.ntis.gov.au>.

Developing Assessment Tools

When developing their own assessment tools, assessors must ensure that the tools:

- are benchmarked against the relevant unit or units of competency;
- are reviewed as part of the validation of assessment strategies required under the AQTF; and
- meet the assessment requirements expressed in the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

A key reference for assessors developing assessment tools is TAE10 Training and Education Training Package.

Language, Literacy and Numeracy

The design of assessment tools must reflect the language, literacy and numeracy competencies required for the performance of a task in the workplace and not exceed these expectations.

Conducting Assessment

This section details the mandatory assessment requirements and provides information on equity in assessment including reasonable adjustment.

Mandatory Assessment Requirements

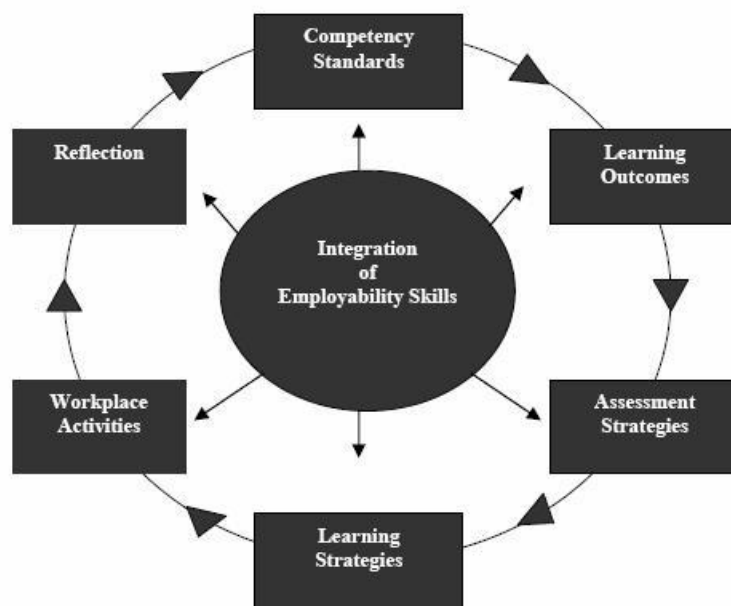

Assessments must meet the criteria set out in the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration. For information, the mandatory assessment requirements from Standard 1 from the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration are as follows:

1.5 Assessment, including Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL):

- a) meets the requirements of the relevant Training Package or accredited course
- b) is conducted in accordance with the principles of assessment and the rules of evidence
- c) meets workplace and, where relevant, regulatory requirements
- d) is systematically validated.

Assessment of Employability Skills

Employability Skills are integral to workplace competency. As such, they must be considered in the design, customisation, delivery and assessment of vocational education and training programs in an integrated and holistic way, as represented diagrammatically below.

Employability Skills are embedded within each unit of competency, and an Employability Skills Summary is available for each qualification. Training providers must use Employability Skills information in order to design valid and reliable training and assessment strategies. This analysis could include:

- reviewing units of competency to locate relevant Employability Skills and determine how they are applied within the unit
- analysing the Employability Skills Summary for the qualification in which the unit or units are packaged to help clarify relevant industry and workplace contexts and the application of Employability Skills at that qualification outcome
- designing training and assessment to address Employability Skills requirements.

The National Quality Council has endorsed a model for assessing and reporting Employability Skills, which contains further suggestions about good practice strategies in teaching, assessing, learning and reporting Employability Skills. The model is available from <http://www.training.com.au/>.

The endorsed approach includes learners downloading qualification specific Employability Skills Summaries for Training Package qualifications from an online repository at <http://employabilityskills.training.com.au>

For more information on Employability Skills in Innovation and Business Skills Australia's Training Packages go to the Innovation and Business Skills Australia website at <http://www.ibsa.org.au>

Employability Skills are reported on each qualification using the following statement on the qualification testamur: "A summary of the Employability Skills developed through this qualification can be downloaded from <http://employabilityskills.training.com.au>"

Access and Equity

An individual's access to the assessment process should not be adversely affected by restrictions placed on the location or context of assessment beyond the requirements specified in this Training Package: training and assessment must be bias-free.

Under the rules for their development, Training Packages must reflect and cater for the increasing diversity of Australia's VET clients and Australia's current and future workforce. The flexibilities offered by Training Packages should enhance opportunities and potential outcomes for all people so that we can all benefit from a wider national skills base and a shared contribution to Australia's economic development and social and cultural life.

Reasonable Adjustments

It is important that education providers take meaningful, transparent and reasonable steps to consult, consider and implement reasonable adjustments for students with disability.

Under the Disability Standards for Education 2005, education providers must make reasonable adjustments for people with disability to the maximum extent that those adjustments do not cause that provider unjustifiable hardship. While 'reasonable adjustment' and 'unjustifiable hardship' are different concepts and involve different considerations, they both seek to strike a balance between the interests of education providers and the interests of students with and without disability.

An adjustment is any measure or action that a student requires because of their disability, and which has the effect of assisting the student to access and participate in education and training on the same basis as students without a disability. An adjustment is reasonable if it achieves this purpose while taking into account factors such as the nature of the student's disability, the views of the student, the potential effect of the adjustment on the student and others who might be affected, and the costs and benefits of making the adjustment.

An education provider is also entitled to maintain the academic integrity of a course or program and to consider the requirements or components that are inherent or essential to its nature when assessing whether an adjustment is reasonable. There may be more than one adjustment that is reasonable in a given set of circumstances; education providers are required to make adjustments that are reasonable and that do not cause them unjustifiable hardship. The Training Package Guidelines provides more information on reasonable adjustment, including examples of adjustments. Go to <http://www.deewr.gov.au/tpdh/Pages/home.aspx>.

Assessment Resources

Registered training organisations (RTOs) are at the forefront of vocational education and training (VET) in Australia. They translate the needs of industry into relevant, quality, client-focussed training and assessment.

RTOs should strive for innovation in VET teaching and learning practices and develop highly flexible approaches to assessment which take cognisance of specific needs of learners, in order to improve delivery and outcomes of training.

Approaches to Unit and Qualification Design in IBSA Training Packages

The IBSA Perspective

IBSA industries directly employ 20% of the Australian workforce and contribute over one third of Australia's Gross Domestic Product.

Specialists from within IBSA sectors are employed everywhere - human resource managers, accountants, IT specialists, administrative personnel, trainers and assessors are employed in all industries. Blended occupations combine business and management skills with other industry specialisations. Individuals working in the IBSA cultural industry fuel our creative economy.

Sole traders	Continual creation of new industries	Technological convergence	Existing workers needing higher level skills	Global contexts
Diverse workers	Rapid change	Compliance	Outsourcing	Remote working
Blended occupations	Individual responsibility for developing and maintaining skills	Continually shifting business partnerships and alliances	Virtual enterprises	Knowledge workers
Mature workers have different skilling and recognition needs	Needs of entry level workers for full qualification

These are the emerging features and trends within IBSA industries; what holds true for IBSA within its own industries is also true beyond its industry portfolio.

A detailed set of design principles has been created to facilitate a more cohesive development approach across IBSA's different sectors.

These are divided as follows:

- conceptual clarity
- rationalisation
- qualification design
- skill set design
- unit design.

Conceptual Clarity

Issue	Guiding Principles
Nature of competence - fit between performance and outcomes as	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • content will be developed on the understanding that competence (and therefore units of competency) comprises a specification of knowledge and skill and the application of
opposed to skills and knowledge	that knowledge and skill to the standard of performance required in the workplace <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • IBSA Training Packages acknowledge the importance of essential and pre-vocational skills and may therefore incorporate units that have no direct workplace outcome e.g. creative thinking units, financial literacy units • each component of a unit of competency will be considered as an integral part of the unit and of equal importance • each unit will be developed and checked to ensure it reflects the four components of competency: task skills, task management skills, contingency management skills, job/role environment skills
Nature of competence - transferability and context	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • IBSA will pro-actively engage with the system to explore issues around transferable skills and transfer of learning, and how this might be encouraged and fostered in different industry sectors and delivery contexts • units will articulate expectations in relation to transferability under the unit section 'Application of this unit'
Recognition	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • content development will acknowledge the importance of respecting an individual's right to recognition with a separate unit of competency where the combination of skills, knowledge, performance and outcomes can be considered unique with no realistic expectation of

	skills transfer to different contexts <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • content development will acknowledge the need to provide separate recognition of performance, skills and knowledge which hold a unique place in a given industry context due to factors such as: licensing or other regulation, accreditation, professional organisation membership, cultural considerations
--	---

Rationalisation

Rationalisation and the reduction of unnecessary duplication is a national priority and IBSA has defined rationalisation as the re-structuring and streamlining of existing Training Package content to:

- reduce duplication within and between training products
- provide a cohesive and flexible set of national training products to meet the skill development needs of industry, the community and individuals.

Issue	Guiding Principles
Rationalisation purpose	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • rationalisation initiatives will be based on clear evidence of benefits for users • benefits of rationalisation will be articulated and documented in the context of specific review and development work
Overall rationalisation approach	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the primary focus of IBSA's rationalisation initiatives will be to identify commonalities across sectors, achieve better integration and reduce unnecessary duplication so that the new framework better reflects the changing nature of work

Rationalisation priorities	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • focus of IBSA's short-term rationalisation efforts will be in key areas: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • existing units and qualifications • units and qualifications which are the most widely used (based on NCVER and other data) • Training Packages due for review • new development • units and qualifications that have the most potential for wide use to meet emerging needs (e.g. innovation, creativity, design)
Rationalisation across contexts	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • focus of IBSA rationalisation across workplace contexts will be placed on units and qualifications where the following criteria apply: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • units, skill sets and qualifications covering priority skills areas

	where convergence is occurring and there is evidence-based demand for better integration (e.g. digital content) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • established or emerging pattern of career path movement across contexts • use of broadly similar technologies in the application of skills • use of underpinning literacies which are broadly similar in nature, scope and level of importance to a given task • well-argued case around transferability of skills and knowledge between contexts • reasonable expectation of system in terms of capacity to deliver on transferable skills
Rationalisation across qualification levels	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • starting point for review/development of units will be the identification of different skills, knowledge and outcomes with no assumption of a unit to fit every AQF level • development of units for packaging at different qualification levels will therefore depend on the identification of different skills, knowledge and outcomes • differentiation between units packaged at different qualification levels in the same skill area and the relationship between such units, will be clearly articulated in all unit components • individual units of competency have different degrees in terms of scope and complexity; IBSA development supports the position that it is qualifications which have AQF levels and not individual units of competency • qualification packaging rules will allow some units to be packaged across a range of AQF levels to provide appropriate flexibility

Issue	Guiding Principles
Starting points for developing qualifications	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • IBSA will construct brief but meaningful profiles about emerging patterns of work, with these profiles forming the basis for qualification review and development
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the research and analysis phase of unit and qualification review or development will place a strong emphasis on emerging industry trends and demand • developers will consider emerging patterns of work and provide clear justification and evidence of need for proposed qualification

	structures <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • developers will consider the benefits of developing qualifications based around function rather than specific industry context to better reflect emerging patterns of work • IBSA Training Packages will support and confirm the place of qualifications that may reach beyond existing notions of 'occupational outcomes' to reflect broad and varied individual, community and industry needs
Overall approach to qualification structure	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • flexibility and options will be a key feature of all qualifications to allow for ongoing change in accordance with the NQC rules for flexible qualifications • packaging will allow selection of units from a range of similarly aligned qualifications in the source and other Training Packages and also units of competency from relevant accredited courses.
Qualification titling and specialisation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • qualifications will be developed around a broad understanding that national policy on qualification titling is for more flexibility to allow the nomination of specialisations in brackets after the main qualification title • specialisations and requirements to achieve the specialisations, will be identified within each qualification as required • nominated specialisations will be based on consultation around the following criteria: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • evidence-based established and emerging occupational outcomes, within and outside, traditional industry boundaries • relevant links to accreditation or licensing • industry development objectives and skills shortages • process and guidelines for the creation of new specialisations will be nominated as part of the supporting information for qualifications
Nesting/ embedding qualifications	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • IBSA has adopted a flexible approach to nesting qualifications that allows for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • stand-alone qualifications • partial nesting by inclusion of specific entry requirements based on clear evidence of need • where specific licensing or accreditation requirements apply, those requirements will guide the structure of the qualification • IBSA will progress work with other ISCs and stakeholders to work towards common understandings around the concepts of nesting and embedding

Parity of qualifications	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • an overarching principle is that the content of qualifications will be determined by the relevant outcomes and by the way skills and knowledge are developed in different contexts
Pathways	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • pathways are identified into and from all qualifications to indicate relevant underpinning qualifications and further learning options that will assist career progression • qualifications where Australian Apprenticeship pathways are suitable will be identified unless at some higher AQF outcomes industry believes this is not appropriate or the qualification has entry requirements or licensing/regulatory restrictions
Licensing	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • IBSA will scope areas under its coverage impacted by licensing and determine priorities for action • IBSA will identify and participate in current licensing projects which impact its industry sectors • relevant qualifications will be developed in the context of current and emerging links between licensing and the training system

Issue	Guiding Principles
Skill sets as part of IBSA Training Packages	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • skill sets are a design methodology that can be applied to provide more flexible training and skill development options within the national training system and will therefore be considered a priority development area across IBSA sectors • NQC policy on skill sets is: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • single units or combinations of units which link to a licence or regulatory requirement, or defined industry need. • other skill sets may be identified and an RTO will still be able to identify a relevant combination of units to meet local, enterprise or individual needs. • the Training Package Development Handbook guides the identification of skill sets • IBSA views skill sets as a cluster of one or more units where achievement of competency in the units links to one or more of the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • industry or community recognition, meeting an identified area of skill need/skill shortage • industry certification/accreditation

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • regulatory compliance • a licence to operate in a given context • vendor certification • all IBSA development and review projects include consideration of the need for skill set development and involve consultation with industry, the training system and individuals on priority areas
Composition and naming of skill sets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • each skill set is named using terminology meaningful to the primary target audience. • skill sets may comprise any combination of units which meets the identified need and may include combinations of units which: • vary in scope and complexity • originate in different Training Packages

Issue	Guiding Principles

Description

This qualification is intended to provide a flexible general purpose pathway in the financial services industry. It is intended to meet the training needs of employees with roles that involve working across a range of duties in the financial services sector where a specialist qualification is not the most suitable qualification to meet their training needs.

For current advice on ASIC compliance under RG146 refer to the advice bulletin on the IBSA website or contact ASIC.

The job roles that this qualification is likely to address are:

- Generalist financial services roles where a varied skill base is required
- Retail financial services officer in a small branch or organisation where the role is varied
- Retail or wholesale financial services administration staff (where a financial services qualification is better suited to address industry and compliance knowledge/skill training outcomes to support employee in the role).
- Leading/supervising a team
- Performing duties of a first line supervisor

Pathways Information

This qualification would provide a pathway into any Diploma level qualification in the Financial Services training package, based upon the electives chosen.

FNS51710 Diploma of Applied Anti-Money Laundering and CounterTerrorism Financing Management

Modification History

Not applicable.

Description

This qualification is designed for individuals in anti-money laundering and counter terrorism financing (AML/CTF) job roles. It establishes benchmark standards for technical AML/CTF knowledge and practice to improve the quality and effectiveness of the AML/CTF regime in Australia.

The AML/CTF Act covers the financial sector, gambling sector and bullion dealing and any other professionals or businesses that provide particular 'designated services'. The AML/CTF Act imposes a number of obligations on businesses when they provide these designated services. These obligations include:

- customer due diligence:
 - identification
 - verification of identity
 - ongoing monitoring of transactions
- reporting:
 - suspicious matters
 - threshold transactions
 - international funds transfer instructions
- record keeping
- establishing and maintaining an AML/CTF program.

More details and contact information for the Australian Government Attorney-General's Department that manages the legislation is provided in the FNS10 Information Kit available from the IBSA website.

Pathways Information

Qualification Pathway

The primary pathway from this qualification is employment in financial services or related industry organisations where anti-money laundering and counter terrorism financing legislation applies.

A further learning pathway utilising qualifications such as:

- FNS60710 Advanced Diploma of Financial Licensing Management
- FNS60810 Advanced Diploma of Financial Risk Management

or other specialisations and/or study in relevant higher education programs would support career progression.

Learners should establish relevant qualifications and any credit arrangements that may apply in order to make appropriate elective choices in this qualification.

Release	Comments
Release 1	This Qualification first released with FNS10 Financial Services Training Package version 2.0 .

Description

This qualification is intended to provide a general purpose pathway into the financial services industries. It is also intended to provide an effective development option for those candidates for whom the specialist qualification pathways in the Financial Services Training Package are not yet appropriate.

This qualification is designed to reflect the role of employees working across a range of duties in the financial services sector where a specialist qualification is not the most suitable qualification to meet their training needs. They may require a diploma to meet regulatory requirements or they may perform management or supervisory duties in areas such as:

- financial and business processes
- customer/client service
- a branch/section
- advisory/distribution services
- a financial services office/practice
- a wholesale business unit or team

Pathways Information

This qualification would provide a pathway into any Advanced Diploma level qualification in the Financial Services training package, based upon the electives chosen.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Identify and record and system requirements	1.1.Comprehensive specifications are prepared based on requirements of potential users with any conflicting requirements and solutions are negotiated prior to and during the development process 1.2.Objectives are defined and specifications documented to establish the expected inputs, outputs and means of delivery 1.3.System and records requirements are prioritised according to importance and urgency of user needs 1.4.Security requirements to maintain system integrity are identified and incorporated into the system design 1.5.Features of any existing system and records are reviewed to establish their suitability and usability 1.6.Recording processes are established according to accepted practice and in accordance with legislation and codes of practice

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
2. Evaluate alternative systems	2.1.Features of various systems are compared and measured against user requirements to enable identification of alternative systems and solutions 2.2.Cost-benefit analysis of alternative systems and solutions is carried out and recommendations documented
3. Acceptance test system	3.1.System is tested in an operational environment to ensure compliance with user requirements, company policy and guidelines, system specifications and relevant legislation or industry codes of practice 3.2.Formal confirmation from all users is obtained on acceptability of new system/system changes against all criteria and system specifications
4. Prepare system documentation	4.1.System documentation is prepared thoroughly and accurately using easily understood language and in a clear format to support system implementation and training 4.2.Users are consulted to ensure clarity, accuracy, thoroughness and usability of system documentation 4.3.System documentation is made easily accessible and is constantly reviewed and updated to ensure currency and accuracy
5. Implement reporting systems and records	5.1.Implementation is carried out in accordance with specified guidelines and timelines and contingency plans established to deal with any potential delays or problems 5.2.Effective training schedules and programs are established to support implementation 5.3.All data are transferred from existing to the new or modified system and records without error or loss 5.4.Systems and records are updated regularly to identify ongoing benefits and threats to the organisation 5.5.Files are maintained within organisational and statutory requirements and discrepancies identified and remedied 5.6.Integrity of systems and records complies with organisational and statutory requirements 5.7. transactions are monitored to identify taxation and other liabilities
6. Monitor reporting systems	6.1.Transactions are analysed and accounted for completely and are correctly related to the

	accounting period 6.2. Processes for recording and classifying transactions are communicated and promoted to support internal verification of records 6.3. Sources of input data and documentation are standardised in structured formats to minimise errors 6.4. Back-ups are maintained in an accessible location to safeguard data in accordance with organisational and audit requirements
7. Review reporting procedures	7.1. Sources of input data and documentation records are systematically checked for accuracy and reliability 7.2. Reporting requirements are established and analysed regularly to identify variations and compliance with established processes for recording and classifying transactions 7.3. Written reports, explanatory notes and financial results are maintained to support source documentation

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
 - determine and confirm system requirements with users
 - liaise with others, share information, listen and understand
 - use language and concepts appropriate to cultural differences
- research and analysis skills for accessing, analysing and managing financial services systems and data

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Evaluate information systems	1.1.System specifications are evaluated against user requirements and feedback to identify redundancies and constraints, and capacities of information technology 1.2.Hardware and software needs are identified from assessment of available products and services 1.3.Possible uses and handling of accounting data are evaluated in consultation with users to determine security requirements 1.4.Organisational procedures and policies are analysed to evaluate scope of strategies for risk management, internal control of expenditure and compliance with statutory requirements 1.5.Enquiries regarding use of systems are monitored and recorded to ensure ongoing evaluation
2. Develop implementation plans	2.1.Principles, procedures and processes arising from internal control systems are examined to determine

	implementation issues relevant to organisational processes 2.2. Strengths and weaknesses of organisational processes, including present and future capacities, are analysed and incorporated in the implementation plan 2.3. Implementation is designed to cover outcomes, resource use, costs and the achievement and maintenance of professional accounting standards 2.4. Schedules are established that are realistic and feasible in the context of the organisation's short-term and long-term objectives
3. Review resource use	3.1. Sources of data input are monitored to identify influences and variations in returns and costs 3.2. Estimates of stock levels are monitored and reviewed to ensure appropriate stocking and ordering of materials and inventory items 3.3. Records of resource use are compared with unit cost estimates to evaluate projected costs 3.4. Factors influencing resource use in the future are analysed to assess impact on operations and objectives
4. Monitor plans	4.1. Implementation is adjusted to take account of emerging external influences and the establishment of alternative targets 4.2. Costs of plans are monitored and controlled by evaluating net benefits to operations from the allocation of resources 4.3. Internal control systems are adjusted to ensure the maintenance and achievement of accounting standards

1. Assess financial risk exposure	1.1. Magnitude and volatility of organisational risks are measured to determine the extent of risk exposure and the implications for financial strategies 1.2. Key factors supporting or driving risk exposure are identified and timeframes established to monitor and improve performance 1.3. Short-term and long-term financial outcomes and projections are compared with actual cash flows using standard financial analysis techniques to determine effects on liquidity and budget adjustments
2. Develop risk management processes	2.1. Risk management options include assessments of alternatives, criteria for success, and estimates of long-term and short-term effects 2.2. Strategies are developed using standard financial analysis techniques to identify financial flows, trends in returns and adjustments in asset values 2.3. Financial recording systems are established to monitor and evaluate changes in market conditions and business needs using a range of data sources 2.4. Risk management strategies are developed that

	optimise the mix of asset structures and liabilities in operations and ensures flexibility to meet changing environments
3. Analyse financial histories	3.1. Financial performance is evaluated using trends and patterns that identify the magnitude and volatility of financial exposures 3.2. Long and short-term financial outcomes are compared with forecast outcomes to assess variances and parameters in performance and the reliability of financial advice 3.3. Incidents and factors increasing or diminishing financial performance are identified and analysed using standard financial analysis techniques
4. Establish processes to minimise risks	4.1.
